funny painful and disturbing by turns this absolutely necessary volume powerfully engages readers in passionate debates about the place of the non african american teacher of african american literature maureen reddy coeditor of race in the college classroom pedagogy and politics what makes someone an authority what makes one person s knowledge more credible than another s in the ongoing debates over racial authenticity some attest that we can know each other s experiences simply because we are all human while others assume a more skeptical stance insisting that racial differences create unbridgeable gaps in knowledge bringing new perspectives to these perennial questions the essays in this collection explore the many difficulties created by the fact that white scholars greatly outnumber black scholars in the study and teaching of african american literature contributors including some of the most prominent theorists in the field as well as younger scholars examine who is speaking what is being spoken and what is not and why framing african american literature in terms of an exclusive black white racial divide is problematic and limiting in highlighting the whiteness of some african americanists the collection does not imply that the teaching or understanding of black literature by white scholars is definitively impossible indeed such work is not only possible but imperative instead the essays aim to open a much needed public conversation about the real and pressing challenges that white scholars face in this type of work as well as the implications of how these challenges are met in fettered genius keith d leonard identifies how african american poets use and revision of traditional poetics constituted an antiracist political agency comparing this practice to the use of poetic mastery by the ancient celtic bards to resist british imperialism leonard shows how traditional poetics enable african american poets to insert racial experience racial protest and african american culture into public discourse by making them features of validated artistic expression as with the celtic bards these poets artistry testified to their marginalized people s capacity for imagination and reason within and against the terms of the dominant culture in an ambitious survey that moves from slavery to the cultural nationalism of the 1960s leonard examines numerous poets placing each in the context of his or her time to demonstrate the antiracist meaning of their accomplishments the book offers new insight on the conservatism of phillis wheatley paul laurence dunbar and the genteel members of the harlem renaissance how their rage for assimilation functioned to refute racist notions of difference and paradoxically to affirm a distinctive racial experience as valid material for poetry leonard also demonstrates how the more progressive and ethnically distinctive poetics of langston hughes sterling brown gwendolyn brooks robert hayden and melvin b tolson share some of the same ambivalence about cultural achievement as those of the earlier poets they also have in common the self conscious pursuit of an affirmation of the african american self through the substitution of african american vernacular language and cultural forms for traditional poetic themes and forms the evolution of these poetics parallels the emergence of notions of ethnic identity over racial identity and indeed in some ways even motivated this shift leonard recognizes poetic mastery as the african american bardic poet s most powerful claim of ethnic tradition and of social belonging and clarifies the full hybrid complexity of african american identity that makes possible this political self assertion the development that is traced in fettered genius illustrates nothing less than the defining artistic coherence and political significance of the african american poetic tradition
