A properly fitted and applied tack promotes comfort efficiency and safety for both horse and rider. Horse Anatomy Horses have a unique skeletal structure that determines the correct placement of tack. The shoulder withers and back are crucial points of contact. The withers a bony ridge should never be directly pressed upon by the saddle just like a delicate piece of pottery should never be placed on a hard surface. Tack Components Familiarize yourself with the purpose and position of each piece bridle reins saddle girth breastplate if used and other specialized equipment eg martingale crupper. Think of each piece as a gear in a bicycle each plays a critical role in the overall function. The StepbyStep Procedure 1 Preparing the Horse This stage is critical. The horse should be calmly standing ideally with its legs slightly apart resembling a wellbalanced tripod. Clear the area of obstructions and ensure the horse is comfortable and not spooked. This is analogous to preparing a room for a delicate procedure want a controlled and stable environment for a smooth process. 2 Applying the Bridle Gently place the bridle on the horse's head aligning the cheek pieces with the cheekbones and ensuring the noseband sits comfortably. Adjust the bit to the horse's mouth then fasten the headstall. Imagine fitting a helmet it must feel secure yet not constricting. 3 Securing the Saddle Position the saddle over the horse's withers ensuring it sits evenly and use your hands to maneuver it to the right position. The saddle should not press directly on the withers it should conform to the horse's back line similar to how a welltailored suit fits a person's body.
