once the weaver's thread has crossed the loom to begin to weave our lives please know that we are not finished he weaves until we die a poem written by noé lara jesus the weaver in his book el mundo de noé the writer shares his thoughts on the world of art and poetry he uses his experiences as a social worker to point out that there are many out there who carry heavy burdens many have been physically or sexually abused while others have suffered emotional trauma due to non caring parents spouses or other care givers he points out that there are many who feel that the art world is reserved for a select few and that this emotional outlet is not for them even though many secretly create art and write poems because they have not mastered the form feel that they cannot share them with others

sharing that can be exceedingly therapeutic for them as well as others who have similar experiences. Noé Lara allows the reader to define art and poetry in a way that is practical and meaningful for them. Noé Lara is hopeful that our grandchildren will have the courage to challenge our societal beliefs that define progress as growing businesses at the expense of the environment or initiating destructive wars in the name of peace by sharing knowledge and aesthetic experiences. Perhaps we will gain a better appreciation for the beautiful in the world and work for a brighter future while we enjoy our journey. An excerpt from author Anais Nin from her book The Diary of Anais Nin sums up writer Noé Lara's need to create through art. Anais Nin in her book The Diary of Anais Nin writes: "Why one writes is a question I can answer easily having so often asked it of myself. I believe one writes because one has to create a world in which one can live. I could not live in the other worlds offered to me: the world of my parents, the world of Henry Miller, the world of Gonzalo, or the world of wars. I had to create a world of my own, like a climate, a country, an atmosphere in which I can breathe, reign and recreate myself when destroyed by living that I believe is the reason for every work of art. The artist is the only one who knows the world is a subjective creation; that there is a choice to be made, a selection of elements; it is a materialization, an incarnation of his inner world; then he hopes to attract others into it; he hopes to impose his particular vision and share it with others."

Featuring spectacular locations across the northern highlands of Scotland, this book describes modern geological science and explores current theories. The extraordinary history of a beautiful landscape should appeal to more general readers as the book combines humour and scientific facts.

In the process, he uses philosophical and literary ideas to establish systematic grounds for optimism about an emerging supra-national order aiming to restore the possibility of grand narrative to our collective past and future.

Presents more than 450 maps of the world along with brief information on each region and an 80 000 entry index gazetteer.
