this three volume set provides a comprehensive yet concise global exploration of health and medicine from ancient times to the present day helping readers to trace the development of concepts and practices around the world from archaeological evidence of trepanning during prehistoric times to medieval Europe's conception of the four humors to present day epidemics of diabetes and heart disease health concerns and medical practices have changed considerably throughout the centuries health and medicine through history from ancient practices to 21st century innovations is broken down into four distinct time periods antiquity through the middle ages the 15th through 18th centuries the 19th century and the 20th century and beyond each of these sections features the same 13 chapter structure touching on a diverse array of topics such as women's health medical institutions common diseases and representations of sickness and healing in the arts coverage is global with the histories of the Americas Europe Asia Africa and Oceania compared and contrasted throughout the book also features a large collection of primary sources including document excerpts and statistical data these resources offer readers valuable insights and foster analytical and critical thinking skills examining a 300 year period that encompasses the scientific revolution this engrossing book offers a fresh and clearly organized discussion of the human experience of health medicine and health care from the age of discovery to the era of the French Revolution health and wellness in the Renaissance and Enlightenment compares and contrasts health care practices of various cultures from around the world during the vital period from 1500 to 1800 these years which include the age of discovery and the scientific revolution were a period of rapid advance of both science and medicine new drugs were developed and new practices some of which stemmed from increasingly frequent contact between various cultures were initiated examining the medical systems of Europe Asia Africa and the colonial world this comprehensive study covers a wide array of topics including education and training of medical professionals and the interaction of faith religion and medicine the book looks specifically at issues related to women's health and the health of infants and children at infectious diseases and occupational and environmental hazards and at brain and mental disorders chapters also focus on advances in surgery dentistry and orthopedics and on the apothecary and his pharmacopoeia one of the great intellectual battles of modern times is between evolution and religion until now they have been considered completely irreconcilable theories of origin and existence David Sloan Wilson's Darwin's Cathedral takes the radical step of joining the two in the process proposing an evolutionary theory of religion that shakes both evolutionary biology and social theory at their foundations the key argument Wilson is to think of society as an organism an old idea that has received new life based on recent developments in evolutionary biology if society is an organism can we then think of morality and religion as biologically and culturally evolved adaptations that enable human groups to function as single units rather than mere collections of individuals Wilson brings a variety of evidence to bear on this question from both the biological and social sciences from Calvinism in sixteenth century Geneva to Balinese water temples from hunter gatherer societies to urban America Wilson demonstrates how religions have enabled people to achieve by collective action what they never could do alone he also includes a chapter considering forgiveness from an evolutionary perspective and concludes by discussing how all social organizations including science could benefit by incorporating elements of religion religious believers often compare their communities to single organisms and even to insect colonies astoundingly wilson shows that they might be literally correct intended for any educated reader darwin's cathedral will change forever the way we view the relations among evolution religion and human society in the year 2020 what we used to think that our habits have been profoundly disrupted lockdown still represents an unprecedented experience for all of those who went through it since it radically affected our freedom of movement and social interaction that used to make up our everyday lives some people believe that once the pandemic ends nothing will be the same others think that once the virus becomes weaker or a vaccine is at our disposal and the fear is diminished everything will go back to normal because the mechanism of habit is in many ways similar to the mechanisms of nature reiterating the uniformity of its functioning who is right then both positions perhaps when philosophers addressed the issue of customs namely collective habits generally emphasized the caution required when it comes to changing them and if we look back on history could pandemics affect shared habits in specific territories as ultimately generated in reaction to other natural risks and or to their threats
