an essential volume for medievalists and scholars of comparative literature medieval lyric opens up a reconsideration of genre in medieval european lyric departing from a perspective that asks how medieval genres correspond with twentieth century ideas of structure or with the evolution of poetry this collection argues that the development of genres should be considered as a historical phenomenon embedded in a given culture and responsive to social and literary change entirely original in its methodology this study offers a fresh approach to the study of romanesque fa e sculpture declining to revisit questions of artistic personalities artistic style and connoisseurship dorothy f glass delves instead into the historical and historiographical context for a group of significant monuments erected in italy between the last decade of the eleventh century and the first third of the twelfth century in her reading local culture takes precedence over names context over connoisseurship she argues that it was the cultural intellectual and religious life of the abbeys of san benedetto po and nonantola that provided the framework for the reformist ethos of much of the sculpture adorning the cathedral of modena glass argues that the monuments are deeply rooted in the concerns of the reform of the church more commonly known as the gregorian reform that these reform ideas and ideals were first fomented in monastic communities and then adopted by the new cathedrals built in cities that freed of submission to imperial german rule had recently rejoined the papal fold the sculpture of reform in north italy ca 1095 1130 history and patronage of romanesque fa es moves scholarship beyond continuously reiterated opinions concerning style attribution chronology origins and influence instead opening new and fruitful lines of inquiry into the patronage and historical significance of these extraordinary monuments this book brings together in a novel and exciting combination three authors who have written movingly about mourning two medieval italian poets dante alighieri and francesco petrarca and one early twentieth century french novelist marcel proust each of these authors through their respective narratives of bereavement grapples with the challenge of how to write adequately about the deeply personal and painful experience of grief in jennifer rushworth s analysis discourses of mourning emerge as caught between the twin conflicting demands of a comforting readable shared generality and a silent solitary respect for the uniqueness of any and every experience of loss rushworth explores a variety of major questions in the book including what type of language is appropriate to mourning what effect does mourning have on language why and how has the orpheus myth been so influential on discourses of mourning across different time periods and languages might the form of mourning described in a text and the form of closure achieved by that same text be mutually formative and sustaining in this way discussion of the literary representation of mourning extends to embrace topics such as the medieval sin of acedia the proper name memory literary epiphanies the image of the book and the concept of writing as promise in addition to the three primary authors rushworth draws extensively on the writings of sigmund freud julia kristeva jacques derrida and roland barthes these rich and diverse psychoanalytical and french theoretical traditions provide terminological nuance and frameworks for comparison particularly in relation to the complex term melancholia dante and petrarch are two of the world's greatest love poets who convey the story of their emotional intellectual and religious life in part through a story of human love the focus here is not so much on the myriad symbolic values and associations of beatrice and laura but rather both on the attitudes of these two poets to sexual desire in order to throw some light on the character of their human love and on the status and value they give to human love in the context of their christian lives for all the stark contrasts between them dante and petrarch have been often compared for they write in a common literary classical and christian tradition the comparison generally leads to the conclusion that dante describes his human love experience as positive and constructive whilst petrarch's experience of love is negative and destructive my intention here is not to polarize their views in this way but rather to identify the different yet positive and highly original value both poets attribute to human love more than fifty years ago etienne gilson claimed that peter abelard turned to loving god in the way that heloise had loved him with the disinterestedness which she claimed in loving him and which she accused him of never understanding in loving her it is the general argument of this study that dante and petrarch as well as leaving their original mark on the treatment of love in literature have insights into religion personal to them which can be likewise characterized by examining their attitude to human love and the story of their personal loves there are many more aspects to their catholicism than are examined in these essays the discussion here is of that part of their faith which grows out of or is coloured by or at least can be explored through their human loving luigi tansillo is one of the most interesting and representative of the petrarchist poets active in naples during the mid sixteenth century this study reconsiders his substantial lyric corpus from a variety of perspectives opening with a survey of the textual tradition and previous critical work on his verse four of tansillo's lyric collections are examined in depth and read from narrative and thematic points of view particular emphasis is placed on the evolution of the collections by exploring the ways in which very different types of narrative implying different underlying poetics can be constructed using often identical poems parallel to this is a consideration of tansillo's place within the broader literary historical context and his use of verse as a political and ideological tool in the service of the spanish viceroy of naples these detailed studies of individual poetic sequences are complemented by an analysis of tansillo's poetic language within the context of neapolitan reactions to the questione della lingua and of his contribution to creating a fixed iconology for the representation of jealousy in the renaissance and baroque lyric
