while much recent attention has been focused on the subprime lending and foreclosure crisis little has been said about its radically disparate impact drawing upon history as well as insight into the current crisis this book shows that this crisis is not an anomaly especially for people of color nor is it over people of color have been excluded from wealth building opportunities via homeownership continuously throughout united states history from the outright denial of credit and residential racial discrimination to federally sponsored urban renewal programs the subprime lending and foreclosure crisis is predicted to strip a quarter of a trillion dollars in wealth from black and latino homeowners it has reversed home ownership gains for people of color and has decimated neighborhoods across the united states while impacting local regional national and international economies the consequences are devastating this collection of essays provides a framework for creating equitable policy and ultimately building more stable communities for all americans the field of affordable housing and community economic development in the united states has evolved since the 1960s it has become a solid and complex industry building healthy communities a guide to community economic development for advocates lawyers and policymakers documents the themes and trends of the contemporary ced movement and provides guidance for strengthening our communities and ensuring that they and their residents prosper in today s global economy architecture is often thought to be a diary of a society filled with symbolic representations of specific cultural moments however as craig l wilkins observes that diary includes far too few narratives of the diverse cultures in u s society wilkins states that the discipline of architecture has a resistance to african americans at every level from the startlingly small number of architecture students to the paltry number of registered architects in the united states today working to understand how ideologies are formed transmitted and embedded in the built environment wilkins deconstructs how the marginalization of african americans is authorized within the field of architecture he then outlines how activist forms of expression shape and sustain communities fashioning an architectural theory around the site of environmental conflict constructed by hip hop culture wilkins places his concerns in a historical context and also offers practical solutions to address them in doing so he reveals new possibilities for an architecture that acknowledges its current shortcomings and replies to the needs of multicultural constituencies craig l wilkins a registered architect teaches architecture and urban planning at the university of michigan race and coalition is volume 1 number 2 of the journal race ethnicity it reflects continuing attention by scholars and advocates to the theoretical and practical features of coalition building contributors engage topics that include the challenges and opportunities racially marginalized groups face in trying to work together the mobilization of transnational networks in multiracial organizing the simultaneous use and critique of white privilege multiracial organizing against the rights of other marginalized populations and the unintended effects of coalition building
