this volume sheds light on plurilingualism in spanish occupied italy during the early modern period from a variety of perspectives topics include written language in pragmatic contexts such as administrative documents plurilingual literature and theater and early modern thought on plurilingualism this book contributes to a more balanced view of the most dramatic results of language contact by presenting linguistic and historical sketches of lesser known contact languages the twelve case studies offer eloquent testimony against the still common view that all contact languages are pidgins and creoles with maximally simple and essentially identical grammars they show that some contact languages are neither pidgins nor creoles and that even pidgins and creoles can display considerable structural diversity and structural complexity they also show that two language contact situations can give rise to pidgins especially when access to a target language is withheld by its speakers the chapters are arranged according to language type three focus on pidgins hiri motu by tom dutton pidgin delaware by ives goddard and ndyuka trio pidgin by george l huttar and frank j velantie two on creoles kituba by salikoko s mufwene and sango by helma pasch one on a set of pidgins and creoles arabic based contact languages by jonathan owens one on the question of early pidginization and or creolization in swahili by derek nurse and five on bilingual mixed languages michif by peter bakker and robert a papen media lingua and callahuaya both by pieter muysken and mednyj aleut and ma a both by sarah thomason the authors collective goal is to help offset the traditional emphasis within contact language studies on pidgins and creoles that arose as an immediate result of contact with europeans starting in the age of exploration the accumulation of case studies on a wide diversity of languages is needed to create a body of knowledge substantial enough to support robust generalizations about the nature and development of all types of contact language the second edition of the definitive reference on contact studies and linguistic change provides extensive new research and original case studies language contact is a dynamic area of contemporary linguistic research that studies how language changes when speakers of different languages interact accessibly structured into three sections the handbook of language contact explores the role of contact studies within the field of linguistics the value of contact studies for language change research and the relevance of language contact for sociolinguistics this authoritative volume presents original findings and fresh research directions from an international team of prominent experts thirty seven specially commissioned chapters cover a broad range of topics and case studies of contact from around the world now in its second edition this valuable reference has been extensively updated with new chapters on topics including globalization language acquisition creolization code switching and genetic classification fresh case studies examine romance indo european african mayan and many other languages in both the past and the present addressing the major issues in the field of language contact studies this volume includes a representative sample of individual studies which re evaluate the role of language contact in the broader context of language and society offers 23 new chapters written by leading scholars examines language contact in different societies including many in africa and asia provides a cross section of case studies drawing on languages across the world the handbook of language contact second edition is an indispensable resource for researchers scholars and students involved in language contact language variation and change sociolinguistics bilingualism and language theory
