this book explores different theories of law religion and tradition from both a secular and a religious perspective it reflects on how tradition and change can affect religious and secular legal reasoning identifying the patterns of legal evolution within religious and secular traditions it is often taken for granted that even in law change corresponds and correlates to progress that things ought to be changed and they will necessarily get better there is no doubt that legal changes over the centuries have made it possible to enhance the protection of individual rights and to somewhat contain the possibility of tyranny and despotism but progress is not everything in law stability and certainty lie at the core of the rule of law similarly religions and religious laws could not survive without traditions and yet they still evolve and their evolution is often intermingled with secular law the book asks and in some ways answers the questions what is the role of tradition within religions and religious laws what is the impact of religious traditions on secular laws and vice versa how are the elements of tradition to be identified are they the same within the secular and the religious realm do secular law and religious law follow comparable patterns of change do their levels of resilience differ significantly how does the history of religion and law affect changes within religious traditions and legal systems the overall focus of the book addresses the extent to which tradition plays a role in shaping and re shaping secular and religious laws as well as their mutual boundaries modern states increasingly seek to regulate religious expression practice and discourse this is profoundly evident at many levels of islamic policy interaction from debates about the banning of the muslim face veil in europe to civic re education programmes for muslim citizens in china governance of islam in pakistan provides a systematic account of how interactions between multiple public and private bodies direct the regulation and standardisation of islam in one of the largest muslim majority states in the world analysis centres on the institutional development of the council of islamic ideology a constitutional body tasked with issuing advice to the executive and legislature about the compatibility of laws with islamic principles based on archival material that has been subject to little scholarly attention and interviews with council members and staff of other state bodies sarah holz proposes governance as an analytical framework to study the negotiation of religious expression practice and discourse in contrast to the established islamisation narrative which generally labels such religious institutions as mere rubberstamps in the process of policy making the study of governance offers an alternative approach that enables examination of the dynamic competition and cooperation among multiple actors through collective interaction the council and other relevant bodies are active players in the governance of islam insights gained from analysis of the ideational structural and functional evolution of the council offers a global south perspective on liberal democratic ideas about the functionality of the modern state and its institutional structure issues of economic cultural and local international political influence bear strongly in governance analysis engagement with the governance policy tool has applicability across the social sciences but is particularly relevant for south asian near and middle east studies
