originally published in 1995 in the beautiful novel and strange ronald paulson fills a lacuna in studies of aesthetics at its point of origin in england in the 1700s he shows how aesthetics took off not only from british empiricism but also from such forms of religious heterodoxy as deism the third earl of shaftesbury the founder of aesthetics replaced the christian god of rewards and punishments with beauty worship of god with a taste for a work of art william hogarth reacting against shaftesbury's disinterestedness replaced his platonic abstractions with an aesthetics centered on the human body gendered female and based on an epistemology of curiosity pursuit and seduction paulson shows hogarth creating first in practice and then in theory a middle area between the beautiful and the sublime by adapting joseph addison s category in the spectator of the novel uncommon and strange paulson retrieves an aesthetics that had strong support during the eighteenth century but has been obscured both by the more dominant academic discourse of shaftesbury and later sir joshua reynolds and by current trends in art and literary history arguing that the two traditions comprised not only painterly but also literary theory and practice paulson explores the innovations of henry fielding john cleland laurence sterne and oliver goldsmith which followed and complemented the practice in the visual arts of hogarth and his followers this pathologization of reading with a profusion of novels addressed to young male readers paradoxically proposing their own novels as potential cures in the early twentieth century this corpus was critically revisited by a new generation of writers victims of the book shows how gide and proust in particular reworked the fin de si cle paradox to subvert cultural norms about literature and masculinity proposing instead a queer pact between writer and reader narrating the self examines the historical formation of modern japanese literature through a fundamental reassessment of its most characteristic form the i novel an autobiographical narrative thought to recount the details of the writer s personal life thinly veiled as fiction closely analysing a range of texts from the late nineteenth century through to the present day the author argues that the i novel is not a given form of text that can be objectively identified but a historically constructed reading mode and cultural paradigm that not only regulated the production and reception of literary texts but also defined cultural identity and national tradition instead of emphasising as others have the thematic and formal elements of novels traditionally placed in this category she explores the historical formation of a field of discourse in which the i novel was retroactively created and defined
