excerpt from irish literature vol 2 of 10 section one irish authors and their writings sir william francis butler and george darley this excessive love of nature among the early irish is all the more remarkable when we remember that it has always been believed that the aryan races owe their appreciation of the beauties of nature to the introduction among them of christianity religion for the first time taught them that the same god that created them created also all their surroundings and thereby made these surroundings an object of increased interest any esthetic sensibility where nature was concerned seems to have been practically unknown among the pagans of greece and rome according to humboldt we discern the first faint traces of it in cicero and the younger pliny but the irish pagan seems to have been penetrated with it to his profoundest depths for there can be little doubt that such descriptions as i have quoted do not take their color from christianity but are a real legacy from pre christian times about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works irish literature s roots have been traced to the 7th 9th century this is a rich and hardy literature starting with descriptions of the brave deeds of kings saints and other heroes these were followed by generous veins of religious historical genealogical scientific and other works the development of prose poetry and drama raced along with the times modern well known irish writers include william yeats james joyce sean casey george bernard shaw oscar wilde john synge and samuel beckett
