abstract we present a system for managing the execution of downloaded executable content according to flexibly defined security policies downloaded executable content are messages downloaded from remote hosts that contain executables that are run on the downloading principal s machine upon receipt since executables run by downloading principals have their full protection domain by default executable content must be controlled to prevent unauthorized access to the downloading principals resources current systems attempt to control content using a fixed security policy designed for standalone content but these policies are inappropriate for several applications for example current content loading policies do not account for the fact that content from multiple hosts may be combined into one application in this paper we describe a downloaded content execution system that can enforce a variety of security policies covering content download content protection domain derivation and content authorization this system enables privileged principals to define the decisions that less privileged principals are allowed to make for example system administrators can define legitimate authentication policies for applications and application developers can define when the downloading principal s rights can be delegated to other application participants within limits set by system administrators we show how policies for collaborative applications can be defined and enforced also we describe and compare three implementations of the system conflicts in western societies have been on the rise and not just since the financial crisis of 2008 this is generally explained in economic terms with growing disparities in wealth and income the left should benefit from this with its redistribution philosophy however the right is on the upswing even though its neoliberalism is fueling social conflicts how is that behind the economic tensions lies a deep crisis of meaning the right is exploiting this by offering simplistic set pieces of meaning with success because people strive for nothing so much as meaning in their own lives the example of the usa shows how neoliberalism destroys people and societies possible solutions also come from there
