excerpt from the second empire bonapartism the prince the president the emperor bonapartism stands to napoleon in the somewhat peculiar relation in which most religions stand to their founder the picturesque imagination of innumerable ironists has exhausted itself in speculations upon the probable feelings of various divine and semi divine teachers when confronted with the full glories of their own shrines but it may be doubted whether the sensations of the central personage at kamakura or st peter s would bear comparison for irony with the thoughts which must rise in that little white breeched green uniformed figure fresh from a bath of ambrosial eau de cologne prepared by an elysian constant as he studies the externals of his career on the painted canvass of meissonier or spells out his political message from the printed page of m paul de cassagnac and yet unlike many teachers the emperor apprehended the purport of the gospel which he taught napoleon it is a singular fact was a bonapartist but he did not become one until he had ceased to be an emperor i the realities of his career have become almost indecipherably obscured beneath the martyrology and miracles of the napoleonic myth about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
