in thirteen essays by leading art historians and a critical introduction by the editor beyond the yellow badge seeks to reframe the relationship between european visual culture and the changing aspect of the christian majority s negative conceptions of jews and judaism during the middle ages and early modern periods by situating their subjects within a broad continuum of historical and critical issues the authors inquire into such questions as the shifting politics of toleration and intolerance the role played by anti judaic legends in the formation of christian cults the role of positive evaluations of hebrew jewish learning and christian hopes for jewish conversion and the transformation of religious anti judaism into its modern racial and nationalistic counterparts the book will be of special interest to art historians cultural historians students of christian theology and jewish history and to educated general readers an examination of how the jews real and imagined so challenged the christian majority in medieval europe that it became a society that was religiously and culturally antisemitic in new ways in medieval europe jews were not passive victims of the christian community as is often assumed but rather were startlingly assertive forming a jewish civilization within latin christian society both jews and christians considered themselves to be god s chosen people these dueling claims fueled the rise of both cultures as they became rivals for supremacy in how the west became antisemitic ivan marcus shows how christian and jewish competition in medieval europe laid the foundation for modern antisemitism marcus explains that jews accepted christians as misguided practitioners of their ancestral customs but regarded christianity as idolatry christians on the other hand looked at jews themselves not judaism as despised they directed their hatred at a real and imagined jew theoretically subordinate but sometimes assertive an implacable enemy within in their view jews were permanently and physically jewish impossible to convert to christianity thus christians came to hate jews first for religious reasons and eventually for racial ones even when jews no longer lived among them medieval christians could not forget their former neighbors modern antisemitism based on the imagined jew as powerful and world dominating is a transformation of this medieval hatred a sweeping and well documented history of the rivalry between jewish and christian civilizations during the making of europe how the west became antisemitic is an ambitious new interpretation of the medieval world and its impact on modernity in eleven contributions visual antisemitism in central europe imagery of hatred deals with visual manifestations of antisemitism in central europe from the middle ages to the present day the publication which presents heretofore largely unknown materials seeks responses from diverse perspectives to the question of the role of visuality in the development of antisemitic moods and political agendas that encouraged hatred towards jews the scope of visual anti judaism and antisemitism always was and still is very wide from stereotypical depictions that can conceal an underlying message through humorous content to clearly formulated assaults that aim to escalate animosity towards an imaginary collective enemy the goal in both these cases is the exclusion of jews from the majority society imagined as a monolithic whole and the reification of a dividing line between us and them with its wide thematic and methodological range this book offers a comprehensive image of the phenomenon of visual anti judaism and antisemitism and provides rich comparative material for the entire central european region
