how a small handful of giant transnational corporations has come to dominate the farm inputs sector why it matters and what can be done about it every year hundreds of billions of dollars worth of farm machinery fertilizer seeds and pesticides are sold to farmers around the world although agricultural inputs are a huge sector of the global economy the lion's share of that market is controlled by a relatively small number of very large transnational corporations the high degree of concentration among these agribusiness titans is striking considering that just a few hundred years ago agricultural inputs were not even marketed goods in titans of industrial agriculture jennifer clapp explains how we got from there to here outlining the forces that enabled this extreme concentration of power and the entrenchment of industrial agriculture clapp reveals that the firms that rose to the top of these sectors benefited from distinct market technology and policy advantages dating back a century or more that enabled them to expand their businesses through mergers and acquisitions that made them even bigger and more powerful these dynamics matter because the firms at the top have long shaped industrial farming practices that in turn have generated enormous social ecological and health impacts on the planet and the future of food systems beyond analyzing how these problems have arisen and manifested the book examines recent efforts to address corporate power and dominance in food systems and assesses the prospects for change among the first works to examine deep roots of corporate power in agriculture titans of industrial agriculture helps illuminate just how corporate actors have encouraged the lock in of industrial agriculture despite all its known social and ecological costs now is a time of exciting new developments for live animal power as the numbers of adherents to this way of life grow ecologically minded farmers in their fields are developing efficient horse drawn systems and equipment manufacturers in small shops all across north america and europe are coming forth with new innovations in ground drive technology that have us poised on the cusp of another agricultural revolution with working horses mules donkeys and oxen at the heart of it publisher includes a multilingual glossary in french german russian and spanish written as a sequel to the agricultural tractor 1855 1950 by r b gray and farm tractors 1950 1975 by lester larson each chapter lists most of the new tractors introduced for that year a summary of the specifications for the models and information about the companies manufacturing the tractors
