in depictions of home in african american literature Trudier Harris analyzes fictional homespaces in african american literature from those set in the time of slavery to modern urban configurations of the homespace she argues that african american writers often inadvertently create and follow a tradition of portraying dysfunctional and physically or emotionally violent homespaces Harris explores the roles race and religion play in the creation of homespaces and how geography space and character all influence these spaces although many characters in african american literature crave safe happy homespaces and frequently carry such images with them through their mental or physical migrations few characters experience the formation of healthy homespaces by the end of their journeys Harris studies the historical cultural and literary portrayals of the home in works from well known authors such as Richard Wright James Baldwin Toni Morrison and August Wilson as well as lesser studied authors such as Daniel Black A.J. Verdelle Margaret Walker and Dorothy West when twenty seven year old margaret walker s first collection of poems for my people won the yale poets award in 1942 she was just beginning her long and distinguished career as a poet novelist biographer and teacher when her novel jubilee was published to great acclaim in 1966 the new York review of books said it chronicles the triumph of a free spirit over many kinds of bondages. Jubilee is noteworthy for being one of the first novels to present African American history from both a Black and female perspective. It is a historical and fictional account of Walker's great-grandmother's life from slavery through Reconstruction as told to Walker by her maternal grandmother in Trumpeting a Fiery Sound. Jacqueline Miller Carmichael examines the novel's genesis and composition, the process of revision and publication, the work's structure and narrative strategies, its use of history and folklore, and its critical reception in the three decades since its first publication.
