may 28 2021 i have recently come across the code gt in r it is a vertical line character pipe followed by a greater than symbol here is an example mtcars gt head what is the gt code nov 25 2014 i have seen the use of gt percent greater than percent function in some packages like dplyr and rvest what does it mean is it a way to write closure blocks in r a carriage return `\r` makes the cursor jump to the first column begin of the line while the newline `\n` jumps to the next line and might also to the beginning of that line

the infix operator is not part of base `R` but is in fact defined by the package `magrittr` cran and is heavily used by `dplyr` cran it works like a pipe hence the reference to magritte's famous for boolean values there's no difference between bitwise and logical operations but for arbitrary integers the result differs for instance `1 < 2 < 3` in most programming languages however this is

5 days ago i'm using `R` 4.5.2 with `RStudio` 2026.01.0 build 392 under windows 11 using defender for protection in spite of giving `R` and `RStudio` access to all controlled folders i find debugging impossible

nov 19 2009 what's the difference between `\n` newline and `\r` carriage return in particular are there any practical differences between `\n` and `\r` are there places where one should be used
