in october 1943 frederick bailey a wireless operator who had trained with the royal armoured corps was selected for special operation executive s wireless training centre at fawley court henley on thames it was the start of an incredible wartime career that saw fred serve behind enemy lines in both the european and far east theatres with his training complete and having adopted the fieldname r̄tif sergeant bailey became a member of one of the famous jedburgh units team citr̄len the jedburghs generally consisted of compact teams of three men usually an officer a radio operator and a soldier from the country the team was to be dropped into together with major john smallwood and captain pierre bloch a french foreign legionnaire bailey as team citr̄len s radio operator was dropped in into the lagarde area of the vaucluse region in german occupied france by an american aircrew from algiers during the night of 11 12 august 1944 their mission was to support the local resistance groups in the rear of the german units trying to hold back the allied forces sweeping through france after d day as maxine harcourt kelly reveals the fear of bailey s transmissions being intercepted by the germans as well as the constant danger of their location being revealed by informers meant that team citr̄len was constantly on the move despite this on one occasion the group knocked out an enemy tank with the help of an intrepid young frenchman who ran up to it armed only with a grenade and dropped it through the driver's viewing hatch one morning. Bailey learnt that a large German convoy was moving along the road from Grenoble to Lyon. He sent a coded message to HQ in Algiers asking for an immediate air strike. A series of mosquito fighter bombers attacked and destroyed the whole convoy. Fred also caused major disruption to German attempts to withdraw by calling in air support which destroyed a vital bridge. Fred was mentioned in despatches and awarded the Croix de Guerre with Bronze Star by the French. With his war in Europe over, Fred volunteered to serve with SOE's Force 136 in the Far East. He was duly sent out to Burma where he was dispatched into the Keren Hills to monitor the routes being used by the retreating Japanese. Fred was able to send regular reports on enemy troop movements and direct allied air strikes. On one occasion they ambushed a Japanese convoy. A fierce firefight developed but they slipped back into the jungle before the Japanese could counter attack. These attacks were so disruptive that the Japanese were forced to form a special force to hunt Fred's team down as they could not be resupplied. Fred's team grew weaker before long with nothing to eat but a handful of rice each day. The team was beginning to starve. It was left with no option but to evacuate. Even then, Fred's adventures were far from over. In August 1945 he was dropped into Malaya tasked with finding any American aircrew who had been shot down and taken prisoner south of Kuala Lumpur. This is the action packed story of one man's remarkable war serving in allied special forces units behind enemy lines in both occupied Europe and the Far East.

Known terrorists are often targeted for death by the governments of Israel and the United States. Several thousand have been killed by drones or by operatives on the ground in the last twenty years. Is this form of killing justified when hundreds or thousands of lives are possibly at risk at the hands of a known terrorist? Is there anything about it that should disturb us ethically? Sound and practical answers to these questions are more difficult to come by than it might seem. Renowned political theorists Jeremy Waldron and Tamar Meisels here defend two competing positions on the legitimacy of targeted killing as used in counterterrorism strategy. In this riveting and essential For and Against book, the volume begins with a joint introduction briefly setting out the terms of discussion and presenting a short historical overview of the practice. What targeted killing is and how it has been used in which conflicts and by whom it then hones in on killings themselves and the element of targeting. The authors tackle difficult and infinitely complex subjects for example the similarities and differences between targeted killing of terrorists and ordinary killings in combat and they ask whether targeted killing can be regarded as a law enforcement strategy or as a hybrid between combat and law enforcement. They compare the practice of targeted killing with assassination and the use of death squads and they consider the likelihood that targeted killing has been or will be abused against insurgents, criminals or political opponents. Meisels analyzes the assassination by Israeli operatives of nuclear scientists working for regimes hostile to Israel. Meisels and Waldron carefully consider whether this sort of killing can ever be justified in terms of the danger it in theory averts. The conclusions drawn are at once as surprising as they are insightful cautioning us against a world in which targeted killing is the norm as it proliferates rapidly this is essential reading not only for students of political and war theory and military personnel but for anyone interested in or concerned by the future of targeted killing
