the association of ideas became the foundation of freudian psychoanalysis informed the nascent semiology of saussure and characterized the literary works of sterne joyce woolf and especially marcel proust the author of remembrance of things past acutely aware of how philosophical historical and narrative writing intersected gave years of thinking and planning to his multivolume masterpiece its shape was protean each successive volume reconfigured the previous ones and in 1987 proust readers welcomed the publication of several new editions among them the bibliothèque de la Pléiade which presented as many pages of variants as of text the proustian fabric engages the complex layers of association to be found in proust's work according to christie mcdonald remembrance of things past straddles the dominant thinking patterns of two centuries the nineteenth in which the association of fragmentary thought was to be subsumed into the notion of a totality and the twentieth in which the notion of associative thinking was to move toward an infinite process of referral and interpretation imbued with mcdonald's discerning knowledge of proust's intellectual and historical milieu his compendious writing and his critics the proustian fabric is one of the first books to take into account the rich variations of the new editions and to reexamine certain suppositions about proust's methods as well as his concern with philosophy literature art and politics in an interview given in 1913 proust described the as yet uncompleted à la recherche du temps perdu as a series of romans de l'inconscient this study explores the theme of the unconscious in proust's great novel situating it against a backdrop of nineteenth century models of the mind and tracing its connections with major metaphoric and thematic networks in the novel dreams and spoken language in particular emerge as crucial sites of unconscious mental activity providing a wealth of material on which one can base a comparative study of proustian and freudian models of the mind this book is about memory about how the past persists into the present and about how this persistence has been understood over the past two centuries since the french revolution memory has been the source of an intense disquiet fundamental cultural theories have sought to understand it and have striven to represent its stresses viewing cross cultural differences through the lens of cinema proust is read as a writer of maxims and metaphors of short and long sentences as at once an aesthete and a scientific thinker his à la recherche du temps perdu is a hybrid a novel essay an epistemological debate that crosses the boundaries between two cultures art and science science and structure explores the epistemological alertness and anxiety of proust's masterpiece and in so doing illuminates the interrelations between modernist art and science secrets of creativity what neuroscience the arts and our minds reveal draws on insights from leading neuroscientists and scholars in the humanities and the arts to probe creativity in its many contexts in the everyday mind the exceptional mind the scientific mind the artistic mind and the pathological mind components of creativity are specified with respect to types of memory forms of intelligence modes of experience and kinds of emotion authors in this volume take on the challenge of showing how creativity can be characterized behaviorally cognitively and neurophysiologically the complementary perspectives of the authors add to the richness of these findings neuroscientists describe the functioning of the brain and its circuitry in creative acts of scientific discovery or aesthetic production humanists from the fields of literature art and music give analyses of creativity in major literary works musical compositions and works of visual art
