urban transport systems worldwide are faced by a multitude of challenges among the most visible of these are the traffic gridlocks experienced on city roads and highways all over the world the prescribed solution to transport problems in most cities has thus been to build more infrastructures for cars with a limited number of cities improving public transport systems in a sustainable manner however a number of challenges faced by urban transport systems such as greenhouse gas emissions noise and air pollution and road traffic accidents do not necessarily get solved by the construction of new infrastructure planning and design for sustainable urban mobility argues that the development of sustainable urban transport systems requires a conceptual leap the purpose of transportation and mobility is to gain access to destinations activities services and goods thus access is the ultimate objective of transportation as a result urban planning and design should focus on how to bring people and places together by creating cities that focus on accessibility rather than simply increasing the length of urban transport infrastructure or increasing the movement of people or goods urban form and the functionality of the city are therefore a major focus of this report which highlights the importance of integrated land use and transport planning this new report of the united nations human settlements programme un habitat the world s leading authority on urban issues provides some thought provoking insights and policy recommendations on how to plan and design sustainable urban mobility systems the global report on human settlements is the most authoritative and up to date global assessment of human settlements conditions and trends preceding issues of the report have addressed such topics as cities in a globalizing world the challenge of slums financing urban shelter enhancing urban safety and security planning sustainable cities and cities and climate change bringing together the leading authors currently working at the intersection of social science and transport science this volume provides a companion to the well established and extensive international transport and society series each chapter and the volume as a whole offers closer and richer consideration of the issues practices and structures of multiple mobilities which shape the current world but which have typically been overlooked or minimised what this approach seeks to do is not only draw attention to many new areas of research and investigation relating to mobile lives but also to point to new theories and methods by which such lives have to be researched and examined such new theories and methods are relevant both to rethinking transport studies as such but are also recasting societal studies as transport so that it comes out of the ghetto and enters mainstream social science
