this book examines the scope of urban planning in mexico through case studies of four municipalities campeche hermosillo leon and morelia that have recently updated their plans using new federal guidelines we seek to advance a research agenda on the impacts of planning and its effectiveness by proposing some foundations for how to assess planning processes as well as to provide guidance for the federal government of Mexico in its oversight of municipal planning practice and recommendations for the four cities we study we begin with the concern that the debate over whether urban planning in Mexico works suffers from a lack of shared definitions about what is and is not within the scope of urban planning and a shared conceptual framework for assessing the planning process the case studies were conducted as part of a graduate studio in the department of urban planning at UCLA they rely on multiple interviews with planners and professionals in each city as well as documentary and data analysis and literature reviews we use a framework of five processes creating a plan implementing the plan raising revenue to fund urban infrastructure upgrading existing neighborhoods to ensure equal access across neighborhoods and investing in new infrastructure to support growth each case presents a brief urban history and contextual data a description of local government planning activities the current plan the city's political history and transparency in local planning an assessment of planning processes the mechanisms for changing land uses and examples one infrastructure project and enforcement of land use rules and an evaluation of the plan itself including some GIS analysis local zoning and federal policy the book's recommendations fall into three areas making plans into part of an ongoing and iterative process increasing coordination between municipal budgeting and planning and creating transparency and public input to the planning process more specifically we find that new plans often ignore successes and failures of prior plans they do not periodically assess indicators to gauge impact and discretionary changes in between plan updates diminishes the importance of the plan itself in the second area we argue that the scope of planning must be expanded the plan should be integrated with the municipal budgeting process and municipalities in Mexico should work to generate more local revenues to adequately fund plans finally in the third area we recommend making planning documents zoning maps and basic data on urban conditions accessible to the public a lack of transparency and the often opaque decision making processes harm the legitimacy of governance we also outline how the federal government can play a role in advancing these recommendations for local planning processes this book is about the contribution of urban wetlands in livable cities urban wetlands are very valuable blue green infrastructure spaces for human settlements yet they are disappearing as a result of urbanization this phenomenon is worldwide but is particularly intense in Latin America although international literature has made an effort to document the multiple ecosystem services provided by these ecosystems such as water and air cleansing flood mitigation and recreation among others we want to draw attention to the fact that the loss of urban wetlands affects the sustainability of cities and future generations therefore and given the weakness of public policies implemented in the region for their protection it is essential to highlight good practices mechanisms and strategies aimed at protection conservation innovation restoration and work with the community all of this hand in hand with the 17 sustainable development goals the book offers a comprehensive coverage combining the need to protect and conserve urban wetlands from the pressures of urban growth as well as highlighting successful experiences of regulation and of course applied research aimed at nature based solution design for flood management and wastewater treatment restoration areas green infrastructure plans as well as experiences of collective work with communities in contexts of political tensions for the defense of wetlands
