what is the relevance of the chandigarh experiment today written by an esteemed scholar and former resident of the city this fascinating book reevaluates le corbusier s work in chandigarh in terms of the pressing challenges of the present in particular climate change globalization neo nationalism and information technology through a lively poststructuralist and postcolonial framework this book explores issues of preservation identity meaning and change comparing how the chandigarh we see today compares to the original plans and drawings but this book also asks whether chandigarh s aesthetics as well as the ethical tenets on which it was based are still relevant to urban planning and architecture today what lessons if any does the utopian ethos within modernism offer in the face of the climate crisis rising authoritarianism and the digital explosion via chapters focused on the hydrologics of the master plan the symbolism of the capitol buildings and the archeology of the unbuilt museum of knowledge this book makes the future preservation case for chandigarh as an open work a project that was set up by design to be completed by others in times yet to come engaging and erudite throughout this book will appeal to any student scholar or professional with an interest in architecture landscape architecture and urban planning this project is born out of similar questions and discussions on the topic of organicism emergent from two critical strands regarding the discourse of organic self generation one dealing with the problem of stopping in the design processes in history and the other with the organic legacy of style in the nineteenth century as a preeminent form of aesthetic ideology the epistemologies of self generation outlined by enlightenment and critical philosophy provided the model for the discursive formations of modern urban planning and architecture the form of the organism was thought to calibrate modernism s infinite extension the architectural organicism of today does not take on the language of the biological sciences as they did in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries but rather the image of complex systems be they computational informational geo ecological or even ontological aesthetic networks what is retained from the modernity of yesterday is the ideology of endless self generation revisiting such a topic feels relevant now in a time when the idea of endless generation is rendered more suspect than ever amid an ever increasing speed and complexity of artificial intelligence ai networks the essays collected in this book offer a variety of critiques of the modernist idea of endless growth in the fields of architecture literature philosophy and the history of science they range in scope from theoretical and speculative to analytic and critical and from studies of the history of modernity to reflections of our contemporary world far from advocating a return to the romantic forms of nineteenth century naturphilosophie this project focuses on probing organicism for new forms of critique and emergent subjectivities in a contemporary post pandemic constellation of neo naturalism in design climate change complex systems and information networks this book will be of interest to a broad range of researchers and professionals in architecture and art history historians of science visual artists and scholars in the humanities more generally three cultural ecologies reverses common conceptions of modern architecture it reveals how selected works of two modern architects le corbusier and frank lloyd wright embraced environmental and cultural conditions as reciprocal and complementary a basic premise of this book s arguments is that cultural patterns cannot be adequately conceptualized in the terms that typically define ecology today instead studies based on the natural sciences must be complemented by descriptions and interpretations of historical narratives cultural norms and individual expressions previously unpublished images and new interpretations will allow readers to rediscover works they thought they knew villa savoye taliesin la tourette and ocatilla as well as projects that are less well known by wright the house on the mesa and the city residential plan and by le corbusier the immeuble villas and ilôt insalubre projects more broadly this study of cultural ecology at three scales domestic monastic and urban reconsiders the history of modern architecture the conditions brought about by societal and technological modernization and confronted by modern architecture have not disappeared in our time but have intensified making the task of imagining how some measure of equilibrium between culture and ecology might be achieved even more pressing while le corbusier s urban projects are generally considered confrontational in their relationship to the traditional urban fabric his proposal for the venice hospital project remained an exercise in preserving the medieval fabric of the city of venice through a systemic replication of its urban tissue this book offers a detailed study of le corbusier s venice hospital project as a plausible built entity in addition it analyses it in the light of its supposed affinity with the medieval urban configuration of the city of venice no formal attempt to date has been made to critically analyse the hospital project s design considerations in comparison to the medieval urban configuration of the city of venice using a range of methodologies including those from architectural theory and history using archival resources on site analysis and interviews with important resource persons this book is an interpretation of the conceptual basis for le corbusier understanding of the structural formulation of the city of venice as mentioned in the radiant city 1935 in doing so it deciphers the diagrammatic analysis of the city structure found in this work into a set of coherent design modules that were applied in the hospital project and that could become a point of further investigation architects and other architecturally interested laypeople with an interest in venice will find the book a valuable addition to their knowledge for architectural historians the book makes an important link between modernism and the historically grown venice
