ability to project power beyond China's borders focus on moving military power within China both to defend China's borders and perhaps as a prelude to military restructuring in which smaller but more mobile formations could replace larger and more static ones.³ Through its participation in international military exercises as well as peacekeeping operations and humanitarian aid and disaster relief missions the PLA is gaining greater capabilities to deploy outside of China's borders for a variety of missions and.⁴ PLA operations are increasingly supported by a modern civilian integrated military logistics network though a lack of overseas bases continues to limit the effectiveness of this network as it pertains to overseas power projection capabilities.

The papers presented here are a timely and critical look at an evolving and expanding Chinese military and provide context for the changes we may yet see as the PLA continues to modernize as the USPACOM commander I seek to better understand China in aspects that further our ability to find common areas of interest reduce miscalculation and contribute to regional stability. Greater insight into the PLA is essential to this effort as the Chinese military matures grows and ventures farther from China's territory the regional and global implications for the United States and USPACOM as well as our allies and partners will be complex yet critical to our understanding of China's evolving international role and influence. Therefore accurate and timely assessments of the changes taking place within the PLA are essential to understanding how the Chinese are matching military power with their broader policy aims. The outstanding scholarship in this jointly sponsored study by SSI NBR and USPACOM is an important contribution toward this end. The judgments in this volume provide unique and valuable insights on how the PLA is adapting its training to its perception of the security environment. This does not just include how it is resourcing organizing and training its forces but also how the PLA thinks about warfare and the threats they currently face through participation in international military exercises as well as peacekeeping operations PKO and humanitarian assistance and disaster relief HADR missions abroad. The PLA is gaining greater experience in carrying out a broader spectrum of missions for example the lessons learned from counter piracy missions in
