attracted to the rich ceremonial life and unique architecture of the New Mexico pueblos, many early twentieth-century artists depicted pueblo peoples, places, and culture in paintings. These artists' encounters with pueblo Indians fostered their awareness of native political struggles and led them to join with pueblo communities to champion Indian rights. In this book, art historian Sascha T. Scott examines the ways in which non-pueblo and pueblo artists advocated for American Indian cultures by confronting some of the cultural, legal, and political issues of the day. Scott closely examines the work of five diverse artists, exploring how their art was shaped by and helped to shape Indian politics. She places the art within the context of the interwar period (1915-30), a time when federal Indian policy shifted away from forced assimilation and toward preservation of native cultures. Through careful analysis of paintings by Ernest L. Blumenschein, John Sloan, Marsden Hartley, and Awa Tsireh, Alfonso Roybal, Scott shows how their depictions of thriving pueblo life and rituals promoted cultural preservation and challenged the pervasive romanticizing theme of the vanishing Indian. Georgia O'Keeffe's images of pueblo dances, which connect abstraction with lived experience, testify to the legacy of these political and aesthetic transformations. Scott makes use of anthropology, history, and indigenous studies in her art historical narrative. She is one of the first scholars to address varied responses to issues of cultural preservation by aesthetically and culturally diverse artists, including pueblo painters. Beautifully designed, this book features nearly sixty artworks reproduced in full color.

An inspiring biography of an indigenous girl who survived a terrible illness and grew up to create pottery shown in the Smithsonian and other major museums. At age ten, Maria Montoya Martinez was stricken with smallpox, near death. She lay limply in her mother's arms, unable even to swallow. The herbal teas offered her, all the attempts to revive her, seemed to have failed. Trying one last remedy, her aunt and mother filled the hearth with thick green cedar boughs and smoked the room, waving the fumes towards the sick little girl. Maria's mother desperately prayed to Santo Nino, the children's saint, promising that if Maria lived, she would send her on a pilgrimage to see him. Maria lived, to make the pilgrimage and enjoy a long life, but she was forever marked by this event. Her pilgrimage to the Santuario in Chimayo, New Mexico, becomes a symbol of her life: it is a journey toward humility, hard work, and perfection. She feels special since she was favored to live, and so she constantly strives to create the most worthy pots she can, always keeping in mind old grandmother's prowess with clay. The clay connects her to the earth, and the clay links her to her future husband, Julian, who becomes a painter of her pots. Through the years, she is blessed and blesses her whole pueblo with money and, more importantly, love. Maria Montoya Martinez Master Potter is the biography of a very sick little girl who grew to be a strong and talented woman, written by a prize-winning author who was one of Maria's personal friends.

Told in a unique first-person creative nonfiction narrative, Women Artists of the West profiles five important women artists who lived, worked, and created in the early years of the twentieth century: Georgia O'Keeffe, Maria Martinez, Dorothea Lange, Laura Gilpin, and Mary Russell Colton.
