Literary research and the literatures of Australia and New Zealand: strategies and sources is a research guide to the literatures of the two major countries of Oceania: Australia and New Zealand. Covering over 200 years of these geographically and chronologically connected countries, this guide contains references to many different types of resources illustrating how the researcher is best served by using the increasing variety of research tools in combination with each other. The book emphasizes research methodology and outlines the best practices for the research process, paying special attention to the unique challenges inherent in conducting research on the literatures of Australia and New Zealand. Specifically, the book includes commentary on general literary reference materials, library catalogs, print and online bibliographies, indexes and annual reviews, scholarly journals, contemporary reviews, periodicals, journals and newspapers, microform and digital collections, manuscripts and archives, and web resources. It is an essential tool for anyone conducting research on Australia or New Zealand and it is a helpful guide for readers with a special interest in these countries' literatures.

This text will take a modular approach to medical terminology, starting with the basics of word structure and the specifics of how medical terms are devised, followed by medical terminology specific to each body system and finishing with two areas not normally covered in medical terminology texts: alternative and complementary therapies and public health/epidemiological and clinical research terms. Two levels: basic and advanced coverage of terminology specific to the current health environment. Alternative and complementary therapies and public health/epidemiological and clinical research terms evolve. Website with free resources online. Student workbook available as a separate purchase.
