this book provides readers with an up to date account of the use of machine learning frameworks methodologies algorithms and techniques in the context of computer aided design cad for very large scale integrated circuits vlsi coverage includes the various machine learning methods used in lithography physical design yield prediction post silicon performance analysis reliability and failure analysis power and thermal analysis analog design logic synthesis verification and neuromorphic design provides up to date information on machine learning in vlsi cad for device modeling layout verifications yield prediction post silicon validation and reliability discusses the use of machine learning techniques in the context of analog and digital synthesis demonstrates how to formulate vlsi cad objectives as machine learning problems and provides a comprehensive treatment of their efficient solutions discusses the tradeoff between the cost of collecting data and prediction accuracy and provides a methodology for using prior data to reduce cost of data collection in the design testing and validation of both analog and digital vlsi designs from the foreword as the semiconductor industry embraces the rising swell of cognitive systems and edge intelligence this book could serve as a harbinger and example of the osmosis that will exist between our cognitive structures and methods on the one hand and the hardware architectures and technologies that will support them on the other as we transition from the computing era to the cognitive one it behooves us to remember the success story of vlsi cad and to earnestly seek the help of the invisible hand so that our future cognitive systems are used to design more powerful cognitive systems this book is very much aligned with this on going transition from computing to cognition and it is with deep pleasure thati recommend it to all those who are actively engaged in this exciting transformation dr ruchir puri ibm fellow ibm watson cto chief architect ibm t j watson research center this book provides an introduction to the monte carlo method suitable for a one or two semester course for graduate and advanced undergraduate students in the mathematical and engineering sciences it also can serve as a reference for the professional analyst in the past my inability to provide students with a single source book on this topic for class and for later professional reference had left me repeatedly frustrated and eventually motivated me to write this book in addition to focused accounts of major topics the book has two unifying themes one concerns the effective use of information and the other concerns error control and reduction the book describes how to incorporate information about a problem into a sampling plan in a way that reduces the cost of estimating its solution to within a specified error bound although exploiting special structures to reduce cost long has been a hallmark of the monte carlo method the propen sity of users of the method to discard useful information because it does not fit traditional textbook models repeatedly has impressed me the present account aims at reducing the impediments to integrating this information errors both statistical and computational abound in every monte carlo sam pling experiment and a considerable methodology exists for controlling them
