a contemporary collection of readings in metaethics this work discusses whether moral properties exist and how they fit into the world as science conceives it it is useful for the study of metaethics at undergraduate and postgraduate level in this collection of original essays on metaethics the nature of morality and the structure of moral reasoning are characterized the limits of justification in ethics are examined and the underlying rationale of moral philosophy is probed around mid century metaethics held centre stage in discussions of moral philosophy in anglo american and scandinavian philosophical environments during the 1970s its foundational position was challenged by developments within analytic philosophy itself by a renewal of systematic substantive ethics largely but not exclusively of a rawlsian inspiration and by a reinvigorated interest in substantive moral problems on the part of philosophers however as work went on here philosophers encountered problems concerning the methods of moral reasoning and the structure of justification of moral claims that were recognized to be metaethical this led to a renewal of metaethics now freed from its previously narrow linguistic focus and aprioristic restrictions the essays in this volume contribute both to this renewal and to a continued skeptical probing of the very rationale of moral philosophy metaethics occupies a central place in analytical philosophy and the last forty years has seen an upsurge of interest in questions about the nature and practice of morality this collection presents original and ground breaking research on metaethical issues from some of the very best of a new generation of philosophers working in this field this work on meta ethics goes beyond normative ethical issues to ask questions about the claims we make when we engage in normative ethics for example the claim that we should all be honest is normative meta ethics asks what does the should in this claim really signify
