by looking at engagée literature from the recent past when the francophone african writer was implicitly seen as imparted with a mission to the present when such authors usually aspire to be acknowledged primarily for their work as writers contemporary francophone african writers and the burden of commitment addresses the current processes of canonization in contemporary francophone african literature odile cazenave and patricia célerier argue that aesthetic as well as political issues are now at the forefront of debates about the african literary canon as writers and critics increasingly acknowledge the ideology of form working across genres but focusing on the novel the authors take up the question of renewed forms of commitment in this literature their selected writers range from mongo beti ousmane sembène and aminata sow fall to boubacar boris diop véronique tadjo alain mabanckou and léonora miano among

afrique sur seine addresses the development since the 1950s of a new type of francophone african novel created by first generation black african authors living in france drawing parallels with other literatures like the beur and antillean novels odile cazenave examines how these authors men and women are parting from mainstream african literature by exploring more personal avenues while retaining a shared interest in the community of african emigrants cazenave deftly shows us how these writers maneuver between two cultures languages and spheres of being and how they struggle to appeal to their french audience without being untrue to the complex history and reality they portray cazenave further discusses the stereotyping often promoted by french publishing houses to sell african authored texts and its impact at a time when immigration is an important issue in france and when post colonial identity and culture is the object of still increasing interest and attention afrique sur seine guides us through writing that surprises with its fresh insights into multiculturalism and integration for the majority of scholars the animal apocalypse is a militant text a piece of pro maccabean propaganda this text however develops theological reflections that are distinctly different from a justification of an armed struggle its themes are even incompatible with the maccabean movement it is impossible to condemn the second temple and at the same time mobilise people for a fight in order to purify that very temple after dealing with text critical issues this work challenges the thesis that the text is military propaganda through the use of narrative and historical approaches the analyses besides proposing a new way of a studying an apocalypse spell out the peculiarity and the significance of the theology of the animal apocalypse in connection with the biblical history of israel and the theology of the qumran community
