this book takes stock of learning theories in the european union eu integration literature and assesses what insights the concept of learning has added to our understanding of the european integration processes given the european integration dynamics since 2000 including enlargement and new governance approaches and instruments learning and learning related theories have gained major eu significance the book addresses the less noticed micro level patterns of behavioural change that deserve more visibility in the eu s theoretical toolbox it focuses on the conditions under which eu actors in various decision making processes learn or do not learn in asking this question it raises issues about the eu s nature do the eu conditions that favour learning outweigh the eu conditions that inhibit learning is the eu system too complex for learning processes to have a discernible concrete impact to assess the degree that the eu system and its member states learn the authors selected for this volume are all explicitly comparative in their approach and have been encouraged to look at differences across political systems in doing so the authors study how eu member states eu institutions and other groups and organisations pursue learning across the multi level eu policy process this book was previously published as a special issue of journal of european public policy the pacific islands are feeling the effects of globalisation free trade in sugar and garments is threatening two of fiji s key industries at the same time other opportunities are emerging labour migration is growing in importance and pacific governments are calling for more access to australia s labour market fiji has joined samoa tonga tuvalu and kiribati as a remittance economy with thousands of its citizens working overseas meantime papua new guinea and solomon islands grapple with an older kind of globalisation in which overseas companies exploit mineral and forest resources the pacific islands confront unique problems of governance in this era of globalisation the modern democratic state often fits awkwardly with traditional ways of doing politics in that part of the world just as often politicians in the pacific exploit tradition or invent it to serve modern political purposes the contributors to this volume examine pacific globalisation and governance from a wide range of perspectives they come from papua new guinea solomon islands hawaii the federated states of micronesia samoa fiji new zealand and jamaica as well as australia publisher s description the book provides a comprehensive analysis of local government in federations it fills the gap in current legal research and positions local government in federal studies through the lenses of comparative law adopting a more nuanced approach to local government the book considers the shortcomings between the black letter constitution and its operational rules whether and how the regime of local government is implemented is more relevant than its formal but ineffective recognition the comparative survey discloses the variety local institutions take in different federal contexts divided into three parts the book comprises chapters investigating local government in systems that to various degrees have been examined and classified as federal scholars throughout the world have examined the federal local connection in aggregative federations the usa canada switzerland germany australia and austria devolutionary ones belgium bosnia herzegovina italy spain the uk argentina brazil mexico and the russian federation as well as in federations beyond the west where federalism as a colonial legacy has undergone a process of reinvention affecting the federal local connection south africa ethiopia india nigeria comoros democratic republic of congo nepal palau federated states of micronesia st kitts and nevis united arab emirates and pakistan this book is the immediate result of the co operation of a great number of scholars in the netherlands institute of government nig nig is an interuniversity research school as such it has a double task in addition to offering a ph d program to students in public administration it also is a research institute in which a great number of scholars from seven dutch universities participate and work on a common research program the chapters in this book are all products of the research program that started in 1995 this program had the ambition to explore the frontiers of the discipline in two respects first by studying a number of recent developments in society and their consequences for the functioning of government these consequences can be summarised as the development of a system of multi level and multi actor governance second by contributing to the knowledge of institutions both by studying what factors are most important in the formation and change of institutions and by studying the effects of institutions on the behaviour of actors in different political and administrative settings most contributions to this volume either have their origin in conferences organized by the nig or were published as an nig working paper we are grateful to marcia clifford and connie hoekstra who prepared the final version of the manuscript to ian priestnall who took care of the language editing and to an anonymous reviewer whose comments were gratefully used peter ho former head of the singapore civil service was the institute of policy studies 2016 17 s r nathan fellow for the study of singapore this book collects the four ips nathan lectures that he delivered between april and may 2017 and gathers highlights of his dialogues with the audience ho surveys the increasingly complex world and suggests what governments can do to prepare for the future even as no one can predict it he uses metaphors such as the black elephant and concepts like the dialectic of governance to explain how a systematic approach to thinking about the future can help countries in general and singapore in particular build resilience and develop a comparative advantage in the face of uncertainty and rapid change the ips nathan lectures series was launched in 2014 as part of the s r nathan fellowship for the study of singapore its primary goal is to promote public understanding and discourse of issues of critical national interest the voting rights act of 1965 which originally was intended to prohibit barriers to black registration and voting has been hailed as a triumph for civil rights and as a catalyst for the election of minorities to public office in both the deep south and the urban north to advance its objective federal courts instructed many cities to change from at large to single member district electoral systems as a way to ensure that minorities had a reasonable chance to elect representatives of their choice in the first book to critique the implementation of this landmark legislation in a major american city ruth morgan examines its effect on local governance over forty years in dallas and shows that it had unintended consequences for racial politics representation and public policy breaking from studies that measure the success of the vra in terms of increased minority representation morgan assesses the consequences of the act for dallas city government and for the wider interests of minorities as well while endorsing the original intent of the vra morgan believes that this intent was subverted by subsequent amendments to the act and by the courts attempts to advance the political standing of particular minority groups she argues that court imposed single member districts have created in dallas a city council infected with parochialism and careerism a result of members no longer having to compromise to win citywide votes and have had an adverse impact on governmental effectiveness and voter turnout with corruption and cronyism now rampant voting rights legislation and litigation have ultimately failed to fulfill the hopes and aspirations of the unempowered and the district system has created an incentive for continued racial separation governance by decree offers a pointed assessment of the complexities and contradictions produced by the voting rights law while at the same time calling for the federal judiciary to exercise restraint in imposing its will when it lacks the capacity to make choices that are inherently political morgan s powerfully argued case study should inspire much debate and inform forthcoming congressional deliberations over the renewal of the preclearance section of the vra in 2007

this handbook covers all major aspects of eu cohesion policy one of the most significant areas of intervention of the european union over five parts it discusses this policy s history and governing principles the theoretical approaches from which it can be assessed the inter institutional and multi level dynamics that it tends to elicit its practical implementation and impact on eu member states its interactions with other eu policies and strategies and the cognitive maps and narratives with which it can be associated an absolute must for all students of the eu

a collection of lectures seminar papers and keynote addresses from the last thirty years by chief akinyele a top level nigerian civil servant the work is divided into four parts and covers government economic policies and the private sector government budgeting administration and public management and other topical issues which include chapters on university administration managing the church in the twenty first century and the responsibilities of voluntary organisations in nigeria broadly the papers argue for the need to narrow the gap between management practices in the public and private sectors in the interest of the health of the national economy they stress the overarching imperative of resource allocation principles in conditions of scarcity the need for a slimmer and more results orientated government and a better organised private sector equipped to assume the leadership of the national economy
