the monetary system is the indispensable missing link in the debate of sustainability and whether the current financial system can handle these evolved needs to date the un sustainable development goals sdgs primarily have been financed either through the private sector through conventional public sector taxes and fees or through philanthropic commitment assuming a need of 4 to 5 trillion dollars annually in the 10 to 15 years left to finance our future these conventional sources of finance are insufficient in terms of both the scale and speed of funding required to finance our future furthermore the inherent instability of our financial system forces the world community to focus first and foremost on repairing and stabilizing the existing system the development of cryptocurrencies using distributed ledger technologies mainly blockchain has prompted leading central banks to study the potential application of this approach to independently create purchasing power in this vein this book offers a new approach namely introducing a parallel electronic currency specifically designed to finance global common goods and provide the resources necessary to achieve the sdgs furthermore this mechanism would have a stabilizing effect on the existing monetary system the book argues that one way this could be achieved is by giving central banks a modified monetary mandate to inject new liquidity into the system using a top down approach alternatively liquidity could come from corporate or communal initiatives with crypto or communal currencies in a bottom up approach the author maintains that by issuing a blockchain enabled parallel electronic currency earmarked for sdg related projects and using other channels for monetary flow rather than the conventional ones the future could be financed in a different manner in the long run abandoning our current monetary monoculture and introducing a monetary ecosystem would stabilize international financial markets increase monetary regulatory efforts reduce negative externalities create a social pareto optimum and stabilize democracies this book presents in the same spirit as fritjof capra s the tao of physics a tao of finance an outside of the box approach to financing global common goods
