from jews to muslims twentieth century converts to islam tells the stories of twentieth century jewish intellectuals and activists and their various and complex reasons for converting to the islamic faith this book opens with a chapter on the work of late nineteenth century european jewish scholars of arabic and islam who evinced a deep interest in islam but did not leave judaism for the sister religion that so fascinated them their work examined jewish muslim parallels and differences and they brought forth the idea that the convivencia the imagined golden age of muslim jewish intellectual and artistic cooperation could serve as a model for contemporary inter religious relations in the twentieth century a new tendency emerged that of jews in europe the us and israel who left judaism to become muslims zionism struck each of these converts as deeply problematic and by becoming muslim these converts understood that they were joining a tolerant universalist religion that rejected what they saw as jewish particularism whether the geopolitical events of the twentieth century confirmed complicated or refuted their aspirations will be revealed in this book s compelling narratives following world war i the world powers established the mandate system the allotment of the former ottoman province of palestine to great britain required the british administrators to fulfil two conflicting tasks one was to safeguard the rights of all inhabitants of palestine as stipulated in the covenant of the league of nations the other was to promote a jewish national home in the territory which had been the official british policy since the balfour declaration the first attorney general in british mandate palestine norman bentwich embodied this conflict bentwich born in 1883 was an ardent supporter of the zionist case for a jewish homeland in palestine during his decade in charge of the legal implementation of the mandate oscar weller looks at the intriguing life of this multi faceted individual in the context of a torn region
