funeral games in honor of arthur vincent lourié explores the varied aesthetic impulses and ever evolving personal motivations of russian composer arthur lourié a st petersburg native allied with the futurist movement and profoundly sympathetic to silver age decadence lourié was swept away by the revolution he surfaced as a communist commissar of music before landing in europe and america where his career foundered making his way by serving others he became stravinsky s right hand man serge koussevitsky s ghostwriter and philosopher jacques maritain s muse lourié left his mark on the poems of anna akhmatova on the neoclassical aesthetics of stravinsky on eurasianism and on maritain s neothomist musings about music lourié serves as a flawless lens through which aspects of silver age russia early bolshevik rule and the cultural space of exile come into sharper focus but this interdisciplinary collection of essays edited by musicologists klára mórícz and simon morrison also looks at lourié himself as an artist and intellectual in his own right much of the aesthetic and technical discussion concerns his grandly eulogistic opera The Blackamoor of Peter the Great understood as both a belated symbolist work and as a neothomist exercise despite the importance Laurié attached to the opera as his masterwork Blackamoor has never been performed its fate thus serving as an emblem of Laurié's own yet even if Laurié seems to have been destined to be but a footnote in the pages of music history he looms large in studies of emigration and cultural memory here Laurié's life like his last opera is presented as a meditation on the circumstances and psychology of exile ultimately these essays recover a lost realm of musical and aesthetic possibilities a Russia that Laurié and the world saw disappear
