a heart wrenching powerfully written novel spanning three generations of a palestinian family through love and loss war and oppression over a million copies sold worldwide the 15th anniversary edition a powerful and passionate insight into what many palestinians have had to endure michael palin abulhawa possesses the heart of a warrior alice walker palestine 1948 a mother clutches her baby son as israeli soldiers march through the village of ein hod in a split second he is snatched from her arms and the fate of the abulheja family is changed forever mornings in jenin is a devastating novel of love and loss war and oppression heartbreak and hope spanning five countries and four generations of one of the most intractable conflicts of our lifetime readers love mornings in jenin the most heartbreaking novel i have ever so far come to read goodreads review 5 stars within the sadness of its pages glimmers of reconciliation and peace goodreads reviewer 5 stars the perfect example of how fiction has the power to heal goodreads reviewer 5 stars tragic powerful haunting enlightening absorbing and devastating goodreads reviewer 5 stars it made me weep every few pages laugh out loud on others a truly great read goodreads reviewer 5 stars palestine 1941 in the small village of ein hod a father leads a procession of his family and workers through the olive groves as they move through the trees the green fruits drop onto the orchard floor the ancient cycle of the seasons providing another bountiful harvest 1948 the abulheja family are forcibly removed from their ancestral home in ein hod and sent to live in a refugee camp in jenin through amal the bright granddaughter of the patriarch we witness the stories of her brothers one a stolen boy who becomes an israeli soldier the other who in sacrificing everything for the palestinian cause will become his enemy amal s own dramatic story threads its way through six decades of palestinian israeli tension eventually taking her into exile in pennsylvania in america amal s is a story of love and loss of childhood marriage and parenthood and finally the need to share her history with her daughter to preserve the greatest love she has the oxford history of the novel in english is a twelve volume series presenting a comprehensive global and up to date history of english language prose fiction written by a large international team of scholars the series is concerned with novels as a whole not just the literary novel and each volume includes chapters on the processes of production distribution and reception and on popular fiction and the fictional sub genres as well as outlining the work of major novelists movements and tendencies this book offers an account of us fiction during a period demarcated by two traumatic moments the eve of the entry of the united states into the second world war and the onset of the covid 19 pandemic the aftermath of the second world war was arguably the high point of us nationalism but in the years that followed us writers would increasingly explore the possibility that us democracy was a failure both at home and abroad for so many of the writers whose work this volume explores the idea of nation became suspect as did the idea of national literature as the foundation for us writing looking at post 1940s writing the literary historian might well chart a movement within literary cultures away from nationalism and toward what we would call cosmopolitanism a perspective that fosters conversations between the occupants of different cultural spaces and that regards difference as an opportunity to be embraced rather than a problem to be solved during this period the novel has had significant competition for the us public s attention from other forms of narrative and media film television comic books videogames and the internet and the various forms of social media that it spawned if however the novel becomes a residual form during this period it is by no means archaic the novel has been reinvigorated over the past eighty years by its encounters with both emergent forms such as film television comic books and digital media and the emergent voices typically associated with multiculturalism in the united states this book provides a scientific and academic contribution to the scholarly exploration of the complex relationship between the east and the west in american literature the study focuses on four novels mornings in jenin falling man the reluctant fundamentalist and riyah al janna the wind of paradise to discuss how the literature reflects on middle eastern themes in relation to the situations and conditions of the new east it treats the orient as a moving body and takes edward said s orientalism into account also showing post orientalism or the new east as a literary phenomenon in the 21st century specializing in politics militarism and post colonial ideology the book explains and divides the middle east into two parts the arab islamic middle east and the non arab islamic middle east it highlights the similarities and differences between these two parts as depicted in various novels presenting the east as a land of desolation and destruction due to the political regional and religious changes that have shaken it

1940 in the small village of ein hod palestine a father leads a procession of his family and workers through the olive groves it is time for the harvest and as the green fruits drop onto the orchard floor the father is contented by the cycle of the seasons and by his sons who are growing up to be strong and healthy in 1948 residents of ein hod are forcibly removed by the newly formed state of israel and taken to the jenin refugee camp where amal is born but during the family s eviction from their ancestral village ishmael amal s brother is stolen in the mayhem of people fleeing for their lives just a baby ishmael is raised by a jewish family and grows up as david an israeli soldier it is not until the 1967 war when yousef amal s eldest brother comes face to face with david his brother the jew what follows is an absorbing and intensely moving story in which a suicide bomber is given a name face and life of a man pushed to incomprehensible limits an arab girl of humble beginnings escapes her destiny and lives the american dream which her soul cannot reconcile and a nation of destitute refugees living under the general label of terrorists emerge in the context of an unredeemed history set in the midst of the 20 th century s most intractable political conflicts the scar of david weaves history friendship love frayed identity terrorism exhaustion of spirit surrender and courage into a gripping poignant and significant novel

i wrote poetry before i wrote anything else says susan abulhawa esteemed palestinian american author and social activist in the introduction to her first book of poems my voice sought the wind this new work followed her highly acclaimed novel mornings in jenin which has been translated into 32 languages since it was published in 2010 my voice sought the wind represents five years of abulhawa s best poems on the timeless themes of love loss identity and family brought to life through her vivid observations and intimate personal reflections she writes from her own experience with a style that is romantic but tinged with disillusionment often a bit sad and always introspective in the thesis i m primarily concerned with critically discussing and tackling specific topics related to the larger fabric of arab american literature contemporary arab american writers are relentlessly trying to convey a new message to the west and the east that life is changing rapidly and the radical thoughts about the relationship between the west and the east call for reexamination this work focuses on a palestinian family from the village of ein hod which was emptied of its inhabitants by the newly formed state of israel in 1948 the narrator amal is born into that family in a un administered refugee camp in jenin where her family would eventually die waiting or fighting to return to their beloved palestine
