a chapter from the global innovation science handbook a comprehensive guide to the science art tools and deployment of innovation brought together by two editors of the prestigious international journal of innovation science with ground breaking contributions from global innovation leaders in every type of industry the authors of this volume argue that urban education is in urgent need of reform and that although there have been plenty of innovative and even promising attempts to improve conditions most have been doomed the reason for this they agree lies in the failure of our major cities to develop their civic capacity the ability to build and maintain a broad social and political coalition across all sectors of the urban community in pursuit of a common goal since the end of world war ii social science research has become increasingly quantitative in nature a case for the case study provides a rationale for an alternative to quantitative research the close investigation of single instances of social phenomena the first section of the book contains an overview of the central methodological issues involved in the use of the case study method then well known scholars describe how they undertook case study research in order to understand changes in church involvement city life gender roles white collar crimes family structure homelessness and other types of social experience each contributor confronts several key questions what does the case study tell us that other approaches cannot to what extent can one generalize from the study of a single case or of a highly limited set of cases does case study work provide the basis for postulating broad principles of social structure and behavior the answers vary but the consensus is that the opportunity to examine certain kinds of social phenomena in depth enables social scientists to advance greatly our empirical understanding of social life the contributors are leon anderson howard m bahr theodore caplow joe r feagin gilbert geis gerald handel anthony m orum andree f sjoberg gideon sjoberg david a snow ted r vaughan r stephen warner christine l williams and norma williams a path breaking book the first to examine the evolution of community organizing in u s cities while embracing mobilization the contributors acknowledge the challenges inherent in globalization and the norms and values that shape contemporary american culture still they reaffirm that community organizing has an important role to play as part of a broader progressive movement a quiet revolution is taking place in america s forests once seen primarily as stands of timber our woodlands are now prized as a rich source of a wide range of commodities from wild mushrooms and maple sugar to hundreds of medicinal plants whose uses have only begun to be fully realized now as timber harvesting becomes more mechanized and requires less labor the image of the lumberjack is being replaced by that of the forager this book provides the first comprehensive examination of nontimber forest products ntfps in the united states illustrating their diverse importance describing the people who harvest them and outlining the steps that are being taken to ensure access to them as the first extensive national overview of ntfp policy and management specific to the united states it brings together research from numerous disciplines and analytical perspectives such as economics mycology history ecology law entomology forestry geography and anthropology in order to provide a cohesive picture of the current and potential role of ntfps the contributors review the state of scientific knowledge of ntfps by offering a survey of commercial and noncommercial products an overview of uses and users and discussions of sustainable management issues associated with ecology cultural traditions forest policy and commerce they examine some of the major social economic and biological benefits of ntfps while also addressing the potential negative consequences of ntfp harvesting on forest ecosystems and on ntfp species populations within this wealth of information are rich accounts of ntfp use drawn from all parts of the american landscape from the pacific northwest to the caribbean from honey production to a review of nontimber forest economies still active in the united states such as the ojibway harvest of plants recounted here the book takes in the whole breadth of recent ntfp issues including ecological concerns associated with the expansion of ntfp markets and ntfp tenure issues on federally managed lands no other volume offers such a comprehensive overview of ntfps in north america by examining all aspects of these products it contributes to the development of more sophisticated policy and management frameworks for not only ensuring their ongoing use but also protecting the future of our forests economic development and urban growth are the contested grounds of urban politics business elites and politicians tend to forge pro growth coalitions centered around downtown development while progressive and neighborhood activists counter with a more balanced approach that features a strong neighborhood component urban politics is often shaped by this conflict which has intellectual as well as practical dimensions in some cities neighborhood interests have triumphed in others the pro growth agenda has prevailed in this illuminating comparative study barbara ferman demonstrates why neighborhood challenges to pro growth politics were much more successful in pittsburgh than they were in chicago operating largely in the civic arena pittsburgh s neighborhood groups encountered a political culture and institutional structure conducive to empowering neighborhood progressivism in housing and economic development policymaking in contrast the pro growth agenda in chicago was challenged in the electoral arena which was dominated by machine ward based politicians who regarded any independent neighborhood organizing as a threat consequently neighborhood demands for policymaking input were usually thwarted besides revealing why the development policies of two important american cities diverged ferman's unique comparative approach to this issue significantly expands the scope of urban analysis among other things it provides the first serious study to incorporate the civic sector neighborhood politics as an important component of urban regimes ferman also emphasizes institutional and cultural factors often ignored or relegated to residual roles in other studies and expounds on their influence in shaping local politics and policy to add an analytical and normative dimension to urban analysis she focuses on the non elite actors not just the economic and political elites who compose governing coalitions ultimately ferman takes a more holistic and balanced view of large cities than is typical for urban studies as she argues that neighborhoods are an important integral part of what cities are and can be for that reason especially her work will have a profound impact upon our understanding of urban politics marketing research provides a contemporary and managerially relevant discussion of the key principles in the dynamic field of marketing research the authors take an application oriented approach providing students with the tools and skills necessary to solve business challenges and exploit business opportunities it strikes the right balance between quantitative and qualitative data discussions encouraging an understanding of best practice in data collection and analysis supported by strong theoretical discussion and relevant case studies the fourth edition has a new industry voice with insights from ken roberts founder and president of forethought research ken 39s industry cases food for thought tie theory to real world business practice using experiences from clients in anz asia and the us this fourth edition has been revised and updated with streamlined chapters increased coverage of social media and all new end of chapter material students and instructors have access to a thorough digital package offering quizzes exercises and ssps data sets
