the development of international trade theory has created a wide array of different theories concepts and results nevertheless trade theory has been split between partial and conflicting representations of international economic interactions diverse trade models have co existed but not in a structured relationship with each other economic students are introduced to international economic interactions with severally incompatible theories in the same course in order to overcome incoherence among multiple theories we need a general theoretical framework in a unified manner to draw together all of the disparate branches of trade theory into a single ganized system of knowledge this book provides a powerful but easy to operate engine of analysis that sheds light not only on trade theory per se but on many other dim sions that interact with trade including inequality saving propensities education research policy and knowledge building and analyzing various tractable and flexible models within a compact whole the book helps the reader to visualize economic life as an endless succession of physical ca tal accumulation human capital accumulation innovation wrought by competition monopoly and government intervention the book starts with the traditional static trade theories then it develops dynamic models with capital and knowledge under perfect competition and or monopolistic competition the uniqueness of the book is about modeling trade dyn ics ando s well researched comparison of japanese automobile and pharmaceutical investment in europe not only provides a compelling demonstration of the strategic and organizational diversity of contemporary japanese multinationals but illustrates the challenges faced by all multinationals by the complex and multi faceted process of european integration geoffrey jones harvard business school us this book explores the regional strategy and management of japanese mnes in europe ken ichi ando investigates using case studies of the auto and pharmaceutical industries how these companies can and do overcome the inherent difficulties and opportunities of trading in europe including the problems posed by cultural differences and geography alongside the opportunities of expanding markets while these companies are global players they must increasingly be aware of and evolve in response to european economic integration the strategy setting and management are influenced by company and industry specific factors and some common features can be found the locational and entry strategies are based both on the multinationals own resources and capability and on the changing locational conditions while pan european management is conducted to achieve the benefits of multinationality at the regional level the mutual relationships between the location of subsidiaries the entry mode and the pan european operation are clearly shown from the detailed analysis at the company level the impacts and limits of the eu on multinationals are also confirmed in the book and the importance of national characteristics is suggested scholars and graduate students studying international business and economics as well as european integration will find this book of great interest
