encompassing the socio political cultural background of the period this title takes a look at the careers of the old masters and many lesser known artists the book covers artistic developments across six countries and examines in detail many of the artworks on display galenson combines social scientific methods with qualitative analysis to produce a new interpretation of modern art a compelling biography of the polish painter and writer józef czapski that takes readers to paris in the roaring twenties to the front lines during wwii and into the late 20th century art world józef czapski 1896 1993 lived many lives during his ninety six years he was a student in saint petersburg during the russian revolution and a painter in paris in the roaring twenties as a polish reserve officer fighting against the invading nazis in the opening weeks of the second world war he was taken prisoner by the soviets for reasons unknown to this day he was one of the very few excluded from stalin s sanctioned massacres of polish officers he never returned to poland after the war but worked tirelessly in paris to keep alive awareness of the plight of his homeland overrun by totalitarian powers czapski was a towering public figure but painting gave meaning to his life eric karpeles also a painter reveals czapski s full complexity pulling together all the threads of this remarkable life a study of the representation of education in material culture at a period of considerable change and growth on the facade of chartres cathedral serene personifications of the arts of grammar rhetoric dialectic music arithmetic geometry and astronomy present passers by with a vision of education as an improving process leading to greater knowledge of god the arts proved a popular subject in medieval imagery and were included in manuscripts stained glass and luxury metalwork objects as well as on the facades of churches these idealized figures contrast with many textual accounts of education in which authors recorded the hardships of student poverty and the temptations of drink and women to be found in the cities where teachers were increasingly establishing themselves thisbook considers how and why education was explored in the art and architecture of the twelfth century through analysis of imagery in a wide range of media it examines how teachers and students sought to use images to enhance their reputations and the status of their studies it also investigates how the ideal models often set out in imagery compared with contemporary practice in an era that saw significant changes beginning with a shift away from monastic education and culminating in the appearance of the first universities laura cleaver is senior lecturer in manuscript studies institute of english studies university of london making waves crosscurrents in the study of nineteenth century art points the way toward further appreciation and understanding of an era that still resonates strongly in our contemporary culture 00making waves crosscurrents in the study of nineteenth century art honours the life work of petra ten doesschate chu who continues to lead the field in the study of the art of the nineteenth century the twenty eight essays in this book are authored by some of her many friends students and colleagues including seasoned academics and those at the beginning of their careers museum professionals and private sector arts administrators and american european and chinese scholars following petra chu s example and avoiding opaque theoretical language and extended technical analysis authors present original ideas based primarily on the study of objects and their documented historical contexts though their methodologies are diverse their purposes are clear and their language straight forward the essays thoughtfully and respectfully address the solid reality of the nineteenth century in all of its complex and sometimes repugnant sensibilities they disrupt traditional art historical categories and methodologies and highlight topics that have been long ignored and overlooked making waves demonstrates in no uncertain terms that art historians still have much to say to each other and to their readers and that nineteenth century art has only begun to be explored in all its complexity and variety 00laurinda s dixon is professor emerita of art history at syracuse university new york her scholarship considers the intersection of art and science particularly alchemy herbalism medicine astrology and music from the fifteenth through the nineteenth centuries she is the author of many articles book chapters and ten books this unique and extraordinarily rich collection of writings offers a thematic approach to understanding the various theories of art that illumined the direction of nineteenth century artists as diverse as tommaso minardi and georges seurat it is significant that during the nineteenth century most artists felt compelled to found their artistic practice on a consciously established premise to many chance and art are antagonistic terms but a number of 20th century artists have turned this notion on its head by attempting to create artworks based on randomness among those three in particular articulated a well argued and thorough theory of the radical use of chance in art andré breton writer john cage composer and françois morellet visual artist the implications of such a move away from established aesthetics are far reaching as much in conceptual as in practical terms as this book hopes to make clear of paramount importance in this coincidentia oppositorum is the suggested possibility of a correlation between the artistic use of chance and a system of thought itself organised around chance indeed placing randomness at the centre of one s art may have deeper philosophical consequences than just on the aesthetical level
