robert louis stevenson called it a book that captivates in childhood and delights in age bennett cerf selected the tales in this edition in 1932 for the modern library as the most famous and representative from the multivolume translation by sir richard francis burton

this volume of indexes and an extensive english introduction completes the publication of the critical edition of the thousand and one nights of which the first two volumes the arabic text and commentary were published in 1984 for the first time the oldest manuscript of this famous arabic text is now completely accessible to scholars and interested readers this third and final volume which completes painstaking work of more than three decades magnificently adds to the important and pioneering work by muhsin mahdi which has been lauded by so many

2012 choice outstanding academic title most early fairy tale authors had a lot to say about what they wrote charles perrault explained his sources and recounted friends reactions his niece marie jeanne lhéritier and her friend marie catherine d aulnoy used dedications and commentaries to situate their tales socially and culturally while the raffish henriette julie de murat accused them all of taking their plots from the italian writer giovan francesco straparola and admitted to borrowing from the italians herself these reflections shed a bright light on both the tales and on their composition but in every case they were removed soon after their first publication remaining largely unknown their absence created empty space that later readers filled with their own views about the conditions of production and reception of the tales what their authors had to say about puss in boots cinderella sleeping beauty and rapunzel among many other fairy tales is collected here for the first time newly translated and accompanied by rich annotations also included are revealing commentaries from the authors literary contemporaries as a whole these forewords afterwards and critical words directly address issues that inform the contemporary study of european fairy tales including traditional folkloristic concerns about fairy tale origins and performance as well as questions of literary aesthetics and historical context
