Bachelor thesis from the year 2013 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies. Literature Grade B. Université Toulouse II Le Mirail, English Department. Course Master 1, Language English. Abstract: This paper examines one of the most popular nineteenth-century novel, Wuthering Heights, together with its film adaptation Wuthering Heights directed by Cécil de Gaudemar. A mammoth screen production supported by the Screen Yorkshire Production Fund 2008 in order to understand the differences between films and novels as modes of storytelling. By a close examination of both the structure of the novel and film, then I will provide analyses of two sequences from then I will proceed with a close-up on two of the female characters, Catherine and Isabella, and finally I will discuss the sense of cold and loneliness both in novel and film. Wuthering Heights written between October 1845 and June 1846 by Emily Brontë is one of the main classic novels of English literature together with Sense and Sensibility by Jane Austen and Great Expectations by Charles Dickens which were successfully transformed into films by British filmmakers. Cinematic adaptations often provoke debates about their fidelity to the original. Discussions about how the classic text has been transformed into film, whether adapted movies are spoiling the charm of the novel and thus ruining it or on the contrary whether film has rescued the novel making it seem more interesting and worth reading in a new historical context. Can a novel be successfully transformed into film without spoiling it or on the contrary we may consider novels cannot be replaced and by adapting them the films deprive spectators of their ability to imagine.
