this book examines how the vampire has always been connected to ideas of infection pollution and disease even more so in the 21st century where it expresses the horrors of unseen and unstoppable disease and the foreboding and anxiety that accompany viral outbreaks and wider epidemics here the vampire gives physical form to the contagion and associated anxieties around the perceived causes and spread of disease where it can take on many forms from animal to pestilential particulate matter creeping shadows and even malignant weather systems if blood is life it is the body of the vampire that is death this timely study looks at how and why the vampire continues to fulfil this function and posits that the true patient zero in the 21st century is no longer the dangerous ancient outsider from the east but is the undying monster that is western culture itself this book explores vampire narratives that have been expressed across multiple media and new technologies stories and characters such as dracula carmilla and even draculaura from monster high have been made more real through their depictions in narratives produced in and across different platforms this also allows the consumer to engage on multiple levels with the vampire world blurring the boundaries between real and imaginary realms and allowing for different kinds of identity to be created while questioning terms such as author reader player and consumer these essays investigate the consequences of such immersion and why the undead world of the transmedia vampire is so well suited to life in the 21st century chevy chase's infamous speech from the movie caddyshack provides the perfect title for this book which deals with the mental side of golf. The book includes interviews with more than 100 professional and amateur golfers and instructors each telling readers how they too can reach this higher state of control. Some of the biggest names in golf offer their unique tips, philosophy and thoughts on becoming the very best golfer in the world.

This volume offers an eco-critical and post-humanist deconstruction of ecologies, environmentalisms, trans and post-humanisms represented in the 21st-century vampire narratives. The corpus encompasses the so-called western narratives, anglo and francophone as well as the eastern european ones, polish and russian. The structural analysis of the vampire narratives focuses on the main topoi: the ecological attitudes and statements as expressed by the actors of the stories themselves; the narratives' attitude towards the animals; the vampire and human actors' diet; the actors and the narrative definition and positioning of the nonhuman. The volume follows the topoi's complex entanglements, presenting a multidimensional insight into the contemporary stances on the world realities.

The imagination of the early twenty-first century is catastrophic. With hollywood blockbusters, novels, computer games, popular music, art, and even political speeches all depicting a world consumed by vampires, zombies, meteors, aliens from outer space, disease, crazed terrorists, and mad scientists, these frequently gothic descriptions of the apocalypse not only commodify fear itself, they articulate and even help produce imperialism, building on and often retelling the british imperial gothic of the late nineteenth century. The american imperial gothic is obsessed with race, gender, degeneration, and invasion, with the destruction of society, the collapse of modernity, and the disintegration of capitalism, drawing on a rich array of texts from a long history of the gothic. This book contends that the doom faced by the world in popular culture is related to the current global instability, renegotiation of worldwide power, and the american bid for hegemony that goes back to the beginning of the republic and which have given shape to the first decade of the millennium. From the frontier gothic of charles brockden brown's edgar huntly to the apocalyptic torture porn of eli roth's hostel, the american imperial gothic dramatises the desires and anxieties of empire, revealing the ways in which images of destruction and social upheaval both query the violence with which the us has asserted itself locally and globally, and feed the longing for stable imperial structures. This book will be of interest to scholars and students of popular culture, cultural and media studies, literary and visual studies, and sociology.
