was the iraq war really an act of goodwill to liberate people from injustice or was it a strategic move to maintain us dominance globally this book casts a critical light on the real motives behind war and conflict david keen explores how winning war is rarely an end in itself rather war tends to be part of a wider political and economic game that is consistent with strengthening the enemy keen devises a radical framework for analysing an unending war project where the war on terror is an extension of the cold war the book draws on the author s detailed study of wars in sudan sierra leone as well as in a range of other conflicts

this book connects two of the most pressing ethical topics of our time questions of peace and technology materialized in so called autonomous weapons systems which can operate without human control and intervention in real time the author however criticizes the term autonomy as too anthropomorphic and therefore misleading she consequently proposes using the term autoregulation in its place taking a contingent pacifist stance this book addresses the question of whether such technological means help or hinder peace processes the argument is tripartite first it is demonstrated that the risk of harm to nonparticipants is very likely to increase second and with respect to responsibility it is indicated that a human machine system can only be operated responsibly if a human is in control finally this idea is transferred into theological thought through reference to bonhoeffer s idea of incurring guilt in acting responsibly in that context autoregulative technology might pose the possibility of shying away from responsibility and therefore becoming guilty this book is among the first ethical considerations of lethal autoregulative weaponry from a contingent pacifist stance and brings together peace ethical thinking and theories from various backgrounds
