the day after the deadly shooting at the marjory stoneman douglas high school the rallying cry heard across the country was no more school shootings it was clearly evident that school shootings are increasing and reactive measures are not going to change this images from parkland sandy hook and columbine made it ever so clear that whereas the atrocities caught our attention schools are still soft targets there are no manuals from the united states department of education to turn to for guidance to secure schools no guidance on how to train administration and staff as they truly are the first responders in such an event rather than wait for the heads of the federal and state education departments to step up and take action the time has come for all school leaders and administrators to take the step to protect their school communities this book will help school leaders and administrators proactively take action to protect their school communities and yet still maintain a warm and nurturing learning environment zero knowledge interactive proof systems are a new technique which can be used as a cryptographic tool for designing provably secure protocols. Goldwasser, Micali, and Rackoff originally suggested this technique for controlling the knowledge released in an interactive proof of membership in a language and for classification of languages. In this approach, knowledge is defined in terms of complexity to convey knowledge if it gives a computational advantage to the receiver. Theory and a message is said for example by giving him the result of an intractable computation. The formal model of interacting machines is described in [19, 15, 17]. A proof system for a language L is an interactive protocol by which one user, the prover, attempts to convince another user, the verifier, that a given input x is in L . We assume that the verifier is a probabilistic machine which is limited to expected polynomial time computation while the prover is an unlimited probabilistic machine. In cryptographic applications, the prover has some trapdoor information or knows the cleartext of a publicly known ciphertext. A correct proof system must have the following properties: if $x \in L$, the prover will convince the verifier to accept the proof with very high probability; if $x \notin L$, no prover, no matter what program it follows, is able to convince the verifier to accept the proof except with vanishingly small probability.
