this book presents new ethnographic research carried out with five children between one and five years old it explores children's agency in relation to daily transitions across everyday life contexts such as home and day care contexts based on this new research pernille juhl shows how young children are active participants orientating in their everyday life transitions she argues that we should understand children as creative and transformative subjects co-creating together with co-participants such as parents, professionals and other children the conditions under which they live. Juhl builds on theoretical work by Holzkamp, Stetsenko, Heidegger and Vygotsky and covers a range of theoretical approaches and concepts in her analysis such as Befindlichkeit, micromovements and embodied orientation. While the research was carried out in the Danish context, the broader theoretical discussions are relevant for early childhood contexts globally with a focus on Europe and the USA.

Featured on the 2021 Locus Recommended Reading List for over 50 years, Darko Suvin has set the agenda for science fiction studies through his innovative linking of sci-fi to utopian studies, formalist and leftist critical theory and his broader engagement with what he terms political epistemology. Disputing the Deluge joins a rapidly growing renewal of critical interest in Suvin's work on sci-fi and utopianism by bringing together in a single volume 24 of Suvin's most significant interventions in the field from the 21st century with an introduction by editor Hugh O'Connell and a new preface by the author. Beginning with writings from the early 2000s that investigate the function of literary genres and reconsider the relationship between science fiction and fantasy, the essays collected here each a brilliant example of engaged thought highlight the value of sci-fi for grappling with the key events and transformations of recent years. Suvin's interrogations show how speculative fiction has responded to 9/11, the global war on terror, the 2008 economic collapse and the rise of conservative populism along with contemporary critical utopian analyses of the Capitalocene, the climate crisis, COVID-19 and the decline of democracy. By bringing together Suvin's essays all in one place, this collection allows new generations of students and scholars to engage directly with his work and its continuing importance and timeliness.

The Routledge Handbook to Sociology of Music Education is a comprehensive, authoritative and state-of-the-art review of current research in the field. The opening introduction orients the reader to the field, highlights recent developments and draws together concepts and research methods to be covered. The chapters that follow are written by respected, experienced experts on key issues in their area of specialisation from separate beginnings in the United States, Europe and the United Kingdom in the mid-twentieth century. The field of the Sociology of Music Education has and continues to experience rapid and global development. It could be argued that this handbook marks its coming of age. The handbook is dedicated to the exclusive and explicit application of sociological constructs and theories to issues such as globalisation, immigration, post-colonialism, inter-generational music-making, socialisation, inclusion, exclusion, hegemony, symbolic violence and popular culture contexts. Range from formal compulsory schooling to non-formal communal environments to informal music making and listening. The handbook is aimed at graduate students, researchers and professionals but will also be a useful text for undergraduate students in music education and cultural studies.
