issues relating to the social economic and political status of India's Muslim minority community have been a matter of debate for several decades. Quite a few state governments have initiated studies on the community and evolved administrative measures on their recommendations. As early as the 19th century, Sir Monstuart Elphinstone, the legendary British administrator, put it on record that special measures were required to uplift the backward sections of the Muslim community. Studies conducted by the British administration led to the passage of a government act in 1935 offering Dalit Muslim reservation facilities along with Dalit Hindus. During the regime of Mrs. Indira Gandhi as Prime Minister, the Government of India constituted a ten-member High Power Panel on Minorities, Scheduled Castes, and Scheduled Tribes and other weaker sections. Headed by Dr. Gopal Singh, the committee after thorough examination of the social, economic, and educational status of the Muslim community expressed that sense of discrimination prevailing among the minorities and that it must be eliminated root and branch if we want the minorities to form an effective part of the mainstream.
