this book argues that relationships between religion and development in faith based development work are constructed through repeated processes of negotiation rather than being a neat and tidy relationship faith based development work is complex and multifaceted an ongoing series of negotiations between theological interpretations and theories of human development between identities as professional practitioners and as believers between different religious traditions at local regional and international levels and between institutional structures and individual agency in particular the book draws on a deep ethnographic study of christian faith based development work in the bolivian andes the case study highlights the importance of seeing theological interpretations as being firmly embedded in local religious and cultural systems involved in a constant process of identity construction overall the book argues that religion should not be seen as homogeneous or either good or bad for development instead we must recognise that institutional faith based identities are constructed in many ways formal theological and interpersonal and any tensions between religious and development goals must be worked through in an ongoing recognition of that complexity this book will be of interest to researchers working in development studies and religious studies as well as to practitioners and policymakers with an interest in faith based development work
