With a focus on Asian traditions this book examines varieties of thought and self-transformative practice that do not fit neatly on one side or another of the standard Western division between philosophy and religion. It contains chapters by experts on Buddhist Confucian Taoist Hindu and Jain philosophies as well as ancient Greek philosophy and recent contemplative and spiritual movements. The volume also problematizes the notion of a Western philosophical canon distinguished by rationality in contrast to a religious eastern other. These original essays creatively lay the groundwork needed to rethink dominant historical and conceptual categories from a wider perspective to arrive at a deeper more plural and global understanding of the diverse nature of both philosophy and religion. The volume will be of keen interest to scholars and students in the philosophy of religion Asian and comparative philosophy and religious studies.

This book explores the use of Confucianism by the Chinese Communist Party in its assertion of political legitimacy. Confucian thought offers an enduring framework for political legitimacy in East Asian societies including China. All states strive to acquire legitimacy and despite once denouncing Confucianism as the remnants of feudal poison the party is turning towards Confucianism as part of its legitimization efforts. This suggests that the party is suffering from an ideological void in terms of legitimacy and legitimization due to the diminishing relevance of Marxism in Chinese societal practices. The book will devise a non-liberal legitimacy framework drawing on the ideas of Habermas and Bernard Williams to examine the legitimacy of the party and use an analysis of the elite discourse to determine the nature of the Confucian turn in a sharp polemic that will interest scholars of Chinese politics of the role of traditional beliefs in Asian modernity and in China's future.

Incorporating cultural and religious contexts this unique encyclopedia provides a vital guide to the main concepts and thinkers in Asian philosophy starting with Abhidharma and ending with Zurvan. The main philosophical trends and thinkers in each geographical area are featured with an emphasis on contemporary developments and movements. The A-Z structured encyclopedia emphasizes that Asian philosophy is not merely an ancient form of thought but that it is a living philosophy with roots in the past and also a potent and animate presence today. This translates into the reciprocal exchange of theories between Eastern and Western thinking. For example of new schools of thought such as Orientalism requiring no prior knowledge of philosophy religion or Asian cultures this book is essential reading for students teachers and the interested individual who wishes to gain an understanding of the philosophical basis to Asian cultural systems.
