how are injurious pasts redeployed by the dispossessed after servitude explores how agrarian engineers indigenous farmers mestizo mining bosses and rural workers navigate racial hierarchies rooted in histories of forced agrarian labor in the rural bolivian province of ayopaya where the liberatory promises of property remain elusive quechua people address such hierarchies by demanding aid from mestizo elites and when that fails through acts of labor militancy against institutional faith in property ownership as a means to detach land from people and present from past the kin of former masters and servants alike have insisted that ethical debts from earlier racial violence stretch across epochs and formal land sales what emerges is a vision of justice grounded in popular demands that wealth remain beholden to the region s agrarian past by tracing ayopayans active efforts to contend with servitude s long shadow mareike winchell illuminates the challenges that property confronts as both an extractive paradigm and a means of historical redress stigma is a corrosive social force by which individuals and communities throughout history have been systematically dehumanised scapegoated and oppressed from the literal stigmatizing tattooing of criminals in ancient greece to modern day discrimination against muslims refugees and the undeserving poor stigma has long been a means of securing the interests of powerful elites in this radical reconceptualisation tyler precisely and passionately outlines the political function of stigma as an instrument of state coercion through an original social and economic reframing of the history of stigma tyler reveals stigma as a political practice illuminating previously forgotten histories of resistance against stigmatization boldly arguing that these histories provide invaluable insights for understanding the rise of authoritarian forms of government today what are the consequences of staying in or moving out of a socioeconomically disadvantaged neighbourhood in european urban sociology research has mostly focused either on lower class ethnic minorities or on white ethnic majority middle classes by contrast studies on upwardly mobile ethnic minorities are scarce a gap that this book fills by looking at upwardly mobile turkish germans living in berlin those turkish germans in berlin who decide to move out of a low status neighbourhood mostly in order to find a better educational infrastructure for their children show various strategies to keep ties back to their old neighbourhood moreover the movers now living in neighbourhoods with a high share of native german residents where they stand out as the other keep ties to other people with a turkish background not only through socializing with co ethnics but also through various forms of voluntary involvement hence a move presents a spatial withdrawal from a socioeconomically weak and ethnically diverse neighbourhood but it does not imply that this neighbourhood no longer plays a role in turkish germans daily practices or as somewhere with which to continuously identify barwick s sophisticated study shows that moving and staying are both active decisions and they both have positive and negative consequences thus movers and stayers alike develop coping strategies for their respective situation and develop particular daily practices and forms of identification with place
