few episodes in american history were more transformative than world war ii and in no region did it bring greater change than in the west having lifted the united states out of the great depression world war ii set in motion a massive westward population movement ignited a quarter century boom that redefined the west as the nation's most economically dynamic region and triggered unprecedented public investment in manufacturing, education, scientific research, and infrastructure. An economic revolution that would lay the groundwork for prodigiously innovative high-tech centers in Silicon Valley, the Puget Sound area, and elsewhere amidst robust economic growth and widely shared prosperity in the post-war decades, westerners made significant strides toward greater racial and gender equality even as they struggled to manage the environmental consequences of their region's surging vitality at the same time. Wartime policies that facilitated the federal withdrawal of western public lands and the occupation of Pacific islands for military use continued an ongoing project of U.S. expansionism at home and abroad. This volume explores the lasting consequences of a pivotal chapter in U.S. history and offers new categories for understanding the post-war West. Contributors to this volume include Mark Brilliant, Gerald L. Cadava, Matthew Dallek, Mary L. Dudziak, Jared Farmer, David M. Kennedy, Daniel J. Kevles, Rebecca J. Plant, Gavin Wright, and Richard White.

When disaster strikes, survivors suddenly find themselves in a world that has become confusing and unfamiliar. Such traumatic events impose severe psychological strain on every member of a community, but children are a particularly vulnerable group requiring special attention. Children and Disasters addresses the needs of this specific population by examining the impact of major disasters on the mental health and emotional functioning of children. The programs described in this book are designed to provide early intervention to children and families undergoing stress reactions to a catastrophic event. The authors offer interventions aimed at enhancing the skills of mental health professionals, educators, and peer counselors in responding to the intensified demands of disasters. These intervention approaches provide information regarding the event itself, reinforce the legitimacy of the anxieties and fears that children and their families are experiencing, and encourage the expression of feelings in group and individual settings for the younger child through drawing and play. Furthermore, they build on the coping capacity of individuals and their families and provide concrete coping skills and techniques to alleviate stress reactions. The intervention model can be applied to programs for individual children and their families, multi-family groups, and groups for children in mental health, educational, and community settings. The practical, hands-on approach to program design makes this book an attractive resource for mental health professionals, social workers, rehabilitation specialists, professional and volunteer counselors, and suicide intervention workers. It will also be useful for school personnel, including teachers, school counselors, and administrators, as well as federal and state emergency planners and coordinators.
