Fictions of Proximity skepticism romanticism and the wallace nexus tells the story of a nexus of contemporary novelists around david foster wallace who took up the legacy of logical positivism and reworked it between the 1980s and the 2000s in a way that has affinities with romanticism the book shows how the writers of this wallace nexus use fiction's complexities to challenge the idea that in human interactions only complete fusion and transparency may count as instances of knowing in place of this positivistic ideal of absorption the book offers the freshly defined concept of proximity a closeness with separateness it reads key novels of contemporary anglo american literature as fictions of proximity i e as texts that dramatize problematize and enact the movement into this position of proximity to tell this story the book draws on unpublished archival materials and understudied connections advancing new interpretations of four novelists david foster wallace david markson bret easton ellis and zadie smith Fictions of Proximity provides new readings of these writers both of their canonical texts and of lesser known works and situates them with respect to prominent figures in contemporary post positivist philosophy in literature and the encounter with immanence brynnar swenson collects nine original essays that approach the relationship between literature and immanence through methodologies grounded in the philosophy of spinoza one of spinoza's most provocative claims is a simple declaration of ignorance we do not know what a body can do a literary theory based on immanence privileges the ontological status of the text and the material act of reading rather than ask what a text means the essays here ask what a text can do each essay documents a distinct literary and philosophical encounter with immanence and as a result opens up a space to read literature as one would read philosophy and vice versa since the start of the financial crisis in 2008 the notion that capitalism has become too abstract for all but the most rarefied specialists to understand has been widely presupposed yet even in academic circles the question of abstraction itself of what exactly abstraction is and does under financialisation seems to have gone largely unexplored or has it by putting the question of abstraction centre stage how abstract is it thinking capital now offers an indispensable counterpoint to the economic turn in the humanities bringing together leading literary and cultural critics in order to propose that we may know far more about capital's myriad abstractions than we typically think we do through in depth engagement with classic and cutting edge theorists agile analyses of recent hollywood films groundbreaking readings of david foster wallace's sprawling unfinished novel the pale king and even original poems the contributors here suggest that the machinations and costs of finance as well as alternatives to it may already be hiding in plain sight this book was originally published as a special issue of Textual Practice this text argues that major twentieth century american writers such as gertrude stein ernest hemingway john barth donald barthelme and david foster wallace provocatively challenge the ethos of productivity by filtering their ethical interventions through culturally stigmatised imagery of laziness this book begins a new and foundational discussion of maximalism by investigating how the treatment of detail in contemporary literature impels readers to navigate tolerate and enrich the cultural landscape of postindustrial america it studies the maximalist novels of david foster wallace nicholson baker thomas pynchon and others considering how overly detailed writing serves the institutional emotional and intellectual needs of contemporary readers and writers the book argues that maximalist novels not only exceed perceived limits of style subject matter and scope but strive to remake the usefulness of books in contemporary culture refreshing the act of reading levey shows that while these novels are preoccupied with detail and description they are relatively unconcerned with the traditional goals of representation instead they use detail to communicate particular values and fantasies of intelligence enthusiasm and ability attached to the management of complex and excessive information whether reinvigorating the banal and trivial in mainstream culture or soothing anxieties of human insufficiency in the age of automation and the internet these texts model significant abilities rather than just objects of significance and encourage readers to develop habits of reading that complement the demands of an increasingly detailed culture drawing upon a diverse range of theoretical schools and cultural texts including thing theory marxism new formalism playlists blogs and archival manuscripts the book proposes a new understanding of maximalist writing and a new way of approaching the usefulness of literary objects in contemporary culture
