in the decades following world war two and in part in response to the cold war governments across western europe set out ambitious programmes for social welfare and the redistribution of wealth that aimed to improve the everyday lives of their citizens many of these welfare state programmes housing schools new towns cultural and leisure centres involved not just construction but a new approach to architectural design in which the welfare objectives of these state funded programmes were delineated and debated the impact on architects and architectural design was profound and far reaching with welfare state projects moving centre stage in architectural discourse not just in europe but worldwide this is the first book to explore the architecture of the welfare state in western europe from an international perspective with chapters covering austria belgium france germany italy the netherlands sweden and the uk the book explores the complex role played by architecture in the formation and development of the welfare state in both theory and practice themes include the role of the built environment in the welfare state as a political project the colonial dimension of european welfare state architecture and its export to africa and asia the role of welfare state projects in promoting consumer culture and economic growth the picture of the collective produced by welfare state architecture the role of architectural innovation in the welfare state the role of the architect as opposed to construction companies and others in determining what was built the relationship between architectural and social theory the role of internal institutional critique and the counterculture contributors include tom avermaete eve blau nicholas bullock miles glendinning janina gosseye hilde heynen caroline maniaque benton helena mattsson luca molinari simon pepper michelle provoost lukasz stanek mark swenarton florian urban and dirk van den heuvel although architecture was historically considered the most public of the arts and the interdependence between building and the public realm was a key feature of the post war discourse the process of postmodernization undermined the traditional structures of power through which architecture operated at the center of this shakeup was the modern structure par excellence the state this dissertation analyzes the dissolution of the bond between architecture and the state through a double lens first this study is framed by the workings of an architect aldo rossi whose practice mirrored this transformation in a unique way going from mussolini s italy to reagan s america from the communist party to disneyland the second lens is provided by a set of technological apparatuses that in this pre digital world impacted the reach of the state and the boundaries of architecture drawing on the multifaceted root of the term state this dissertation sets out to explore a series of case studies that addressed the need to re state architecture both in the sense of relocating architecture within new structures of power and in the sense of finding ways to keep reproducing it in those uncharted territories
