aldo rossi was a practicing architect and leader of the italian architectural movement la tendenza and one of the most influential theorists of the twentieth century the architecture of the city is his major work of architectural and urban theory in part a protest against functionalism and the modern movement in part an attempt to restore the craft of architecture to its position as the only valid object of architectural study and in part an analysis of the rules and forms of the city's construction the book has become immensely popular among architects and design students architecture creates complex spatial situations that are the subject of urban design design uses a repertoire of specific architectural means in a creative way resulting in cities that can be lived in and perceived in their three dimensional experience the current book an extended new edition of architecture of the city 2016 describes the repertoire with which architecture and design regain an entry to urbanistics it pleads for an architectonic turn in urbanistics a demand to finally comprehend the city architecturally the issue is not just about buildings in the city but about architecture of the city as a whole as is clearly expressed in the new title of city as architecture plea is a network of individuals sharing expertise in the arts sciences planning and design of the built environment it serves as an international interdisciplinary forum to promote discourse on environmental quality in architecture and planning this 17th plea international conference addresses sustainable design with respect to architecture city and environment at the turn of the millennium the central aim of the conference is to explore the interrelationships and integration of architecture city and environment the proceedings will be of interest to all those involved in bioclimatic design and the application of natural and innovative techniques to architecture and planning the conference is organised by the martin centre for architectural and urban studies university of cambridge and the cambridge programme for industry university of cambridge the major contemporary work on urban design splendidly presented filled with thoughtful and brilliant intuitive insights the new republic in a brilliant synthesis of words and pictures edmund n bacon relates historical examples to modern principles of urban planning he vividly demonstrates how the work of great architects and planners of the past can influence subsequent development and be continued by later generations by illuminating the historical background of urban design bacon also shows us the fundamental forces and considerations that determine the form of a great city perhaps the most significant of these are simultaneous movement systems the paths of pedestrian and vehicular traffic public and private transportation that serve as the dominant organizing force and bacon looks at movement systems in cities such as london rome and new york he also stresses the importance of designing open space as well as architectural mass and discusses the impact of space color and perspective on the city dweller that the centers of cities should and can be pleasant places in which to live work and relax is illustrated by such examples as rotterdam and stockholm cities have historically supported production commerce and consumption all central to urban life but in the contemporary western city production has been hidden or removed and commerce and consumption have dominated this book is about the importance of production in the life of the city and the relationships between production architecture and urban form it answers the question what will cities be like when they become once again places of production and not only of consumption through theoretical arguments historical analysis and descriptions of new initiatives working cities architecture place and production argues that contemporary cities can regain their historic role as places of material production places where food is processed and things are made the book looks toward a future that builds on this revival providing architectural and urban examples and current strategies within the framework of a strong set of historically based arguments the book is illustrated in full colour with archival and contemporary photographs maps and diagrams especially developed for the book the diagrams help illustrate the different variables of architectural space urban location and production in different historical eras and in different kinds of industries providing a compelling visual understanding for the reader city transformed is about the new urbanism which is certain to be an increasingly potent element in world architecture in the 21st century it contains a selection of key projects dating from the 1990s to the millennium and beyond which exemplify the renaissance of the urban ideal and the rebirth of an architectural program for the city as enlightening as it is optimistic this book takes a vibrant look at today s ever changing urban areas and displays the work of some of the most imaginative and foreword looking architects of our time it promotes a vision of city life that is hopeful exciting and increasingly rewarding describes the visual and mental models by which urban environment has been recognized depicted and planned this analysis draws from geography critical theory architecture literature and painting to identify these maps of the city as a work of art as panorama and as spectacle second and revised edition the publication rethinks climate control a key concern of the discipline of architecture through the lens of city climate phenomena over the course of the 20th century based on a history of climate control on urban scales it promotes the integration of indoors and outdoors in order to reduce environmental and thermal loads in cities just as heating and cooling practices inside the buildings are affecting the urban climate outdoors urban heat islands are influencing the energy requirements and thermal conditions inside the buildings while the first part of the book focuses on the interwar period in europe the publication s second part considers examples from all over the globe tracing the growing significance of ecological thinking for the design of urban environments main outcome of a six years research project on architecture and urban climate funded by the swiss national science foundation new and revised edition klima polis a series highlighting design driven approaches to urban climates across the globe in food city a companion piece to smartcities and eco warriors innovative architect and urban designer cj lim explores the issue of urban transformation and how the creation storage and distribution of food has been and can again become a construct for the practice of everyday life food city investigates the reinstatement of food at the core of national and local governance how it can be a driver to restructure employment education transport tax health culture communities and the justice system re evaluating how the city functions as a spatial and political entity global in scope food city first addresses the frameworks of over 25 international cities through the medium of food and how the city is governed it then provides a case study through drawings models and text exploring how a secondary infrastructure could function as a living environmental and food system operating as a sustainable stratum over the city of london this case study raises serious questions about the priorities of our governing bodies using architectural relationships to reframe the spaces of food consumption and production analyzed through historical precedent function and form this study of the integration of food architecture and the development of future cities will both inspire and stimulate professionals and students in the fields of urban design and architecture michael sorkin is one of the most forthright and engaging architectural writers in the world in what goes up he charts the dehumanising regimes of mayors bloomberg and de blasio that created a city of glittering towers and increasing inequality he looks at what has happened to ground zero as a place of memory has been reconstructed by staritects and turned into malls the city he suggests has to be reimagined from the street up on a human scale to develop new ways to revitalise neighbourhoods alongside these essays on new york sorkin also brings his lifetime s experience as an architect to bear he talks of the joy of observing a city in order to understand it why a young designer must learn to draw by hand rather than only use a computer there are also personal encounters with some of the greatest names who have changed the city sorkin gets lost in rio with zaha hadid and talks about the old bronx with marshall berman hermann czech belongs to the small group of architects that are equally prolific in theory and design over the course of six decades he has created a much recognised body of built work and projects and also developed an architectural theory based on profound knowledge of philosophy and architectural history his writings enable a clearer understanding of the built environment and thereby a sound basis for decisions affecting its future czech grapples with local and universal topics and spars with his colleague and fellow compatriot hans hollein he analyses mannerism and calls attention to underestimated works of architecture he delves as well into questions addressed by intellectuals and like them maintains an ambivalent relationship to modernism and he makes a strong call to embrace reason over style czech also applies his profound knowledge of the works of hegel kant wittgenstein and adorno to pressing architectural topics moreover he recognises that architects often lack the basic framework necessary for meaningful discourse
