document from the year 2017 in the subject theology miscellaneous grade 1 course inter confessional dialogue language english abstract what has motivated the first part of this paper is the genuine search for a christian identity within the context of west cameroon cameroon is a multicultural country which has been grouped into two major linguistic areas french speaking cameroon constitutes more than 70 of the country while the english speaking part makes up more than 25 most often the story of cameroon is written in a block and as if it were a complete unit without minding the fact that the two linguistic parts are made up of two different people who have completely different cultures and styles of governance as well as christian experiences this began in colonial days when missionary activities followed colonial principles thus to concretely explore the subject of ecumenism in cameroon the two units must be studied separately in order to get the true ecumenical story of the country in this paper focus will be laid on west cameroon where ecumenism seems to have been swallowed up under a structure of ecumenism known as cepca which operates more than 90 in the french speaking area and by french principles by exploring this option this paper seeks to make a clear difference between the experiences of the two territories the motivation for the second paper on infant water baptism from the perspective of the presbyterian church in cameroon pcc is guided by the ecumenical reality of the context of cameroon and particularly the western part of cameroon considered as the english speaking section of the country the reality shows that there are many arguments and divisions over the issue of water baptism among the churches operating in this area of the country with each confession trying to criticize the position of the other in the way they do baptism these criticisms are often time void of a positional defense on why each does their water baptism the way they do the pcc in particular and the other traditional churches in west cameroon have suffered from the hands of the pentecostals or new churches over the issue of infant baptism these are not able to clearly stipulate why they think infant baptism is bad but have simply thrown it away in favor of adult water baptism upon this background this paper is meant to attempt an explanation of the pcc s position on baptizing infant with water and why they think it s a very important rite that must not be neglected within the ministry of the church essay from the year 2016 in the subject sociology religion grade 2 0 course sociology language english abstract this text contemplates the dwindling church attendance of young adults and the rising divorce rates in cameroon the presbyterian church cameroon used to pride itself as a church that had a grip of its christians in matters of family life of recent there have been strange winds blowing through the church such that even the clergy have had to face cases of divorce what happened secondly the pews are getting empty everyday as the youths now prefer to stay at home to watch online preachers what can the church do to better the situation it has often been said and rightly so that the world council of churches wcc is first and foremost a fellowship of churches this book is a vivid illustration of that reality the descriptions lists statistical data and other information presented in these pages give a striking picture of the extent and diversity of this fellowship it encompasses a christian population of some 590 million people in close to 150 countries in all regions of the world comprised of over 520 000 local congregations served by some 493 000 pastors and priests as well as countless elders teachers members of parish councils and others a handbook of churches and councils is not simply a handbook of the member churches of the wcc at all levels global regional and sub regional national and local member churches of the wcc interact with other churches which for various reasons are not formally part of the council s membership by combining in one volume all the conciliar and confessional bodies and their membership this book demonstrates concretely the reach of the ecumenical movement and also shows how much broader it is than the wcc alone it serves to remind us that ownership of the movement rests not only with the wcc but with all the partners and ultimately with god

this book examines women s participation in the executive structures of the basel mission and presbyterian church in cameroon in order to tell a new story of women and church leadership in 1886 the basel mission commenced mission work in cameroon and successfully established an indigenous church which gained independence in 1957 as presbyterian church in cameroon pcc in both churches women were underrepresented in the echelons of power owing to entrenched patriarchy and recourse to controversial empowerment female missionaries to cameroon trained women in fields like motherhood domestic science and marriage which yielded little or no opportunities for local women to participate in the power structures of the basel mission this patriarchal culture was handed down to the pcc whose initial all male authority ensured that the power structure was all male but growing feminism within the church and pressure from international ecumenical partners led to timid gender reforms which ended women s exclusion from the ordained ministry promoted female eldership led to the establishment of a convent and the adoption of a gender inclusive policy but women s dearth in positions of leadership persisted with most executive structures filled by men so this book tells the story of women s involvement in the executive structures of the basel mission and presbyterian church in cameroon it is the first effort at a holistic approach to interpreting women s lack of power in these two churches based upon archival research and oral sources the book tells the story of the people forces and events that led to the consistent underrepresentation of women in the churches echelons of power the lived realities of women who challenged patriarchy and held leadership positions in the church are illuminated it documents the reality of women s lack of power with particular focus on the dilemmas of female pastors elders nuns and female christian groups in spiral of silence epistle to the church of christ in cameroon peter wuteh vakunta ph d delivers a scathing critique of the christian church in cameroon contending that its cowardly lethargy and sinful slumber have enabled widespread abuse of power and injustice within the nation the author passionately argues that the church's silence despite biblical mandates to speak truth and fight for the downtrodden has contributed to Cameroon's dysfunctional state drawing parallels to historical figures like Dietrich Bonhoeffer and Martin Luther King Jr. Vakunta challenges Cameroonian clergy to abandon their apolitical stance confront governmental atrocities and actively champion human rights and justice even at the cost of their lives the book serves as a clarion call for the church to fully embrace its God-mandated role as the conscience of society urging it to speak out against corruption tribalism and the erosion of democratic principles that plague Cameroon this book is like a jug of cold water thrown into the face of a dormant church I found myself contending with Peter Wuteh Vakunta over some points but I was struck with the uncanny parallels that he draws between the compliant churches in the United States of America and the churches of Christ in Cameroon if you are inclined to think that you might disagree with what he has to say here is my challenge read this book and ask yourself where did Vakunta get it wrong I think you will find that question more difficult to answer than you expect I personally think that this is Vakunta's most important book for us today Dr Perry Kea professor emeritus university of Indianapolis United States of America
